Lady Astor, Not Flogged.
Fresh Worry in Europe.
The Strong Love of Home.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

LIFE IS cheap, its value drops with other values. New York City, needing 9,000 white mice for laboratory experiment, buys them from the Ozark small stock farm of Springfield, Mo., for less than half a cent per mouse. Five years ago the price was 31 cents, sixty-two times this 1933 price.

Two thousand guinea pigs cost a fraction over 23 cents each.

Sixteen hundred rabbits were bought for 78 cents each. Los Angeles breeders will tell New York this is high.

ONE WHITE mouse, costing half a cent, might give scientists information that would save millions of human lives.

At the Rockefeller Institute, in the cancer department managed by the late Japanese scientist, Noguchi, who sacrificed his life to science, you could see white rats and mice with cancers much bigger than the animal's body.

IF HALF a cent seems cheap for a white mouse, consider the fact that you can get a white human being FOR NOTHING.

It costs nothing at all to adopt a child, to which a human mother has devoted much care, thought and suffering.

IN THE British House of Commons, George Lansbury, annoyed by Lady Astor's fighting qualities, exclaimed:

"Your mother should have flogged you."

IF LADY ASTOR'S good Virginia mother had flogged her, instead of praising her and showing her how to make herself look even prettier, the first few blows of the flogging would have broken Lady's Astor's spirit, which is her mainspring.

The one thing that can help your child to success in life is courage, and that is easily destroyed by brutality in childhood.

LADY ASTOR would not have shown English women how to get into Parliament if she had had her mainspring broken by a severe mother when she was a little girl.

EUROPE HAS a new worry, and, as often happens, the worry starts in the Balkans.

In that troubled part of the world, where one pistol shot in 1914 started the Great War, a new alliance is born, made up of three states, called the "Little Entente."

Czechoslovakia, Yugoslavia and Rumania, with 45,000,000 total population, have practically consolidated. This "entente" will stimulate similar rival combinations of Hungary, Italy, Germany, and badly crippled Austria may have something to say about this new Balkan power. And war may come.

SOME BIRDS fly away fifteen hundred miles, and return, never failing, to the nesting spot of the year before.

Eels leave stagnant ponds in the United States, wriggle across the grass, down to the ocean, swim to the Sargasso sea, where they breed, come back and return to the same pond.

Passionately strong is the love of home. And fortunately that applies to human beings as well as to birds and eels.

IN THE Nassau County jail on Long Island, John Miller, grateful for permission to sleep at night, does odd jobs in the day to save a little money.

He has walked all the way from Kellogg, Idaho, because he wants, after sixty-five years in America, to see once more the little country Luxembourg, where he was born.

That longing, strong all his life, is undiminished, although he is 104 years old.

HITLER, GERMAN dictator, with Mussolini gestures and queer moustache, has suspended four more newspapers.

Perhaps he has read Napoleon's statement:

"If I permitted freedom of the press, my power would not last two weeks."

If Hitler does NOT permit freedom of the press, in the German nation educated by the Social Democrats, for sixty years past, his power will not last long.

PROF. MILLS, of Columbia University, economic research expert, says the average American worker's efficiency has increased 12 per cent since 1929.

When times are hard, and jobs scarce, men work harder for what they get. The sad thing is that men now proving themselves twelve per cent more efficient than ever are, as a rule, getting thirty per cent less pay.

POLICEMAN GUILTY AS SLAYER

Manslaughter Verdict Given in Death of Store Manager

WASHINGTON, Pa., Feb. 18.—Patrolman John Cochran today was found guilty of manslaughter for the death of Charles M. Bittner, 28, five-and ten cent store manager, here last August. Mercy was recommended.

The jury's sealed verdict, reached at 1 a. m. today, was opened by Judge Erwin Cummings, when court convened today.

Cochran's counsel asked that sentence be postponed pending a motion for a new trial.

Cochran was released on $8,000 bail.

The case, on trial all week, was one of the most stubbornly contested here in years. Considerable feeling had been engendered following the slaying, and Patrolman Cochran was under suspension from the police force. Cochran asked a change of venue, which was denied by the court.

The shooting occurred in front of the Court House in which the trial was held. Bittner, manager of a five-and-10-cent store, was killed within an hour after he had closed the store, last August 21.

He had stopped to talk to some other men on the street, when Patrolman Cochran ordered them to disperse. He arrested Bittner. It was contended at the trial that Bittner pulled away from the officer and the latter fired two shots.

Cochran contended he had fired in self-defense and presented witnesses to tell of Bittner breaking away and making a move as though to draw a gun.

North Side Dance Hall Held Up

City-wide search was being made by police today for two bandit pairs, one who robbed a Squirrel Hill woman of her cash, jewelry and coat and the other who robbed the cashier at a North Side dancing studio last night.

Two masked and armed men stepped from an automobile at Forward avenue and Beechwood boulevard and confronted Mrs. Esther Wyner, 30, of 5919 Douglas avenue. Neither spoke, but both began to strip her of her valuables.

The bandits removed her gloves, took a dinner ring valued at $150 from one of her fingers, picked up her purse containing $64 in cash from the sidewalk, where it had fallen and removed a wrist watch valued at $64, police said. After ordering Mrs. Wyner to remove her coat, they sped away in the machine. The coat was valued at $565.

Mrs. Wyner said she saved her wedding ring which the thugs attempted to remove by telling them it bore an inscription and would be of no value to them. They agreed with her. She told police the ring was valued at several hundred dollars.

The cashier at Foreman's Studio of Dancing, 200 East Ohio street, was held up and robbed of the cash box containing $45 while 200 persons danced in the ballroom last night.

Lawrence Rosenblatt, 19, of 3023 Texas avenue, Dormont, was selling tickets at the door of the dance hall, on the second floor, when the two bandits entered. After watching the dancers for more than 20 minutes, one pulled a revolver and ordered Rosenblatt to remain still while his accomplice picked up the cash box. They fled down the stairs.

Racing down the steps, the bandits encountered Eleanor Kraah, 20, of 100 Fountain street, and threatened her, police said.

STATES WAIT HOUSE VOTE ON REPEAL

Many in Position to Rush Ratification Of Dry Change

By JAMES L. KILGALLEN
International News Service.

NEW YORK, Feb. 18.—Legislatures in 41 of the 48 states are now in session, a survey by International News Service revealed today, and prompt steps toward ratification may be anticipated in some states in the event the House of Representatives on Monday follows the action of the Senate and votes for repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment.

Some states—notably Pennsylvania, New York, New Jersey, Massachusetts, Delaware, Rhode Island, Iowa and Wyoming—may vie for the distinction of being the first state to call a constitutional convention for repeal of the Volstead act, which has been a law in this country since January 17, 1920.

PENNSYLVANIA STATUS

(The Pennsylvania Legislature next week will have for consideration several bills dealing with the calling of a convention for action on repeal. The Democratic and Republican organizations eventually may get together on a plan for electing the delegates, but, meanwhile, several members intend to get their own ideas on record through proposed measures.

(Both political organizations in this state agree that the convention machinery should be set up by the present session of the Legislature, but it is doubtful if delegates will be elected before

WAIT SANITY REPORT ON ASSASSIN

Doctors Think Cermak Will Live, Woman Victim Sinking

By GEORGE R. HOLMES
International News Service.

MIAMI, Fla., Feb. 18.—The trial of Giuseppe Zangara, the little Italian who went beserk with a gun and shot five people here in a vain attempt to assassinate President-elect Roosevelt was set today for Monday in Dade County Criminal Court.

Given a second preliminary hearing this morning, counsel for the swarthy little would-be assassin explained to Judge E. C. Collins that they had not yet received a report of their client's mental condition and therefore requested a delay. They thought they would get this report by tomorrow and be prepared to plead on Monday.

10-MINUTE HEARING

The court consented and that ended today's hearing. The whole proceeding occupied but a few minutes. Court convened at 10:05 and at 10:10 the room was cleared.

Zangara was put under observation by two psychiatrists last night, Drs. T. H. Agos and T. E. Moore, who were appointed by the Dade County Medical Society.

There was no indication the defense would enter a plea of insanity, but Dade County authodities want to avoid any appearance of precipitate haste or "railroading" the little Italian.

For 15 minutes before court opened, Zangara sat in the crowded courtroom unmanacled, but guarded by four detectives.

His need of a shave accentuated his swarthiness, frequently he rubbed his black stubbed chin, but only occasionally did he say anything to his guards.

ZANGARA SULLEN

He paid little attention to the snapping of the newspaper cameras and for the most part stared sullenly at the floor.

Extraordinary efforts are being made to prevent any "undue incidents" in connection with Zangara's trial. Spectators and newspaper reporters were "frisked" for firearms on entering the courtroom today. The crowd in the room, however, and outside the courthouse did not appear hostile to him.

For the first time in the history of the Dade County Court, telegraph wires were permitted in the courtroom. The clicking keys furnished an odd note in the somber chamber.

Zangara was kept in his seat until the courtroom was entirely cleared. Then he was whisked back to his solitary skyscraper cell atom Miami's $5,000,000 courthouse and jail.

With at least 80 years in prison looming before him, Zangara will face four informations charging him with assault with intent to murder.

One of the five victims of the hail of bullets he aimed at President-elect Franklin D. Roosevelt remained in critical condition this morning, Mrs. Joseph Gill, wife of a power and light company official, was in grave condition at

GIRL STABBED, YOUTH JAILED

NEW CASTLE, Pa., Feb. 18.—Pretty, vivacious Norma Krause, 18, is battling for her life in New Castle Hospital, while her sweetheart of a year, Norman Turner, 19, is a prisoner in the city jail, accused of stabbing her in the breast. Police said Turner confessed, saying:

"I stabbed her because I was jealous."

They renewed a quarrel while strolling around the streets last night, and stopped on the porch of a vacant house near Norma's home to argue it out. Suddenly Turner whipped out a paring knife and plunged it into the breast of the girl, he told police. The blade severed an artery.

Screams of the girl brought neighbors and Turner fled. Later he surrendered to police. The girl is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Krause, of 116 Gardner avenue, and Turner is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Turner, of 124 Center alley. The boy, it is said, had not been employed lately.

Doctors said the girl has little chance of recovery.

Ex-Kaiser's Wife Goes To Berlin

LONDON, Feb. 1.—(AP.)—The Reuters News Agency correspondent at Doorn, Holland, telegraphed today that the former kaiser's wife, Princess Hermine, left with a secretary for Berlin with the announced object of opening a fancy goods fair there.

The correspondent continues:

"However, it is considered highly probable that the princess will endeavor to effect meetings with leaders of the Hitler government and former members of the nobility, who will be invited to a tea party, at which no doubt the actual political problems regarding possible restoration of the monarchy will be discussed."

'Fixless' Tags Fail To Boost Revenue

Pittsburgh's "fixless" tag system, designed to bring into the city coffers $8,766 during its first six weeks, failed, the Controller's office revealed yesterday.

Receipts, it was said, amounted to only $3,373. Of 7,788 tags issued, 3,737 still are unaccounted for, it was shown. Warrants have been issued for the holders of 280 tags.

HOUSE RAZED, BOMB BLAMED

Detectives of the bomb and arson squad today were investigating the explosion which leveled the two-story brick home of Joseph Bajoras, at 2415 Smallman street, and damaged a garage in the rear and an adjoining building agnd shattered windows in others last night.

Battalion Chief Daniel Jones and detectives expressed belief the blast was caused by a bomb. They said Bajoras had been arrrested several times for violating the liquor laws.

Bajoras was oiling the springs on his automobile in his garage when the blast tore down part of the wall, hurling him into the street. He escaped injury. His wife and two children were at a theater.

Bajoras told police he could not explain the blast.

Baby Boy Adopted By Morton Downeys

NEW YORK, Feb. 18.—(AP.)—Baby Morton Downey, Jr., can now call his little playmate "brother." His father, the tenor, and Mrs. Downey, the former Barbara Bennett, adopted two-year-old Michael O'Brien yesterday.

Michael was a boarder at the Downey home before the Downey baby was born last December.

Kidnapers Negotiate For Broker's Return

'Stranger' Confers With Boettcher Family

By DOROTHY BATTLE
International News Service.

DENVER, Feb. 18.—Possibility that arrangements were being made to open negotiations with the kidnapers of Charles Boettcher II, wealthy investment broker, was indicated today when members and advisors of the Boettcher family held a conference, also attended by a mysterious stranger.

The stranger appeared for the first time at the home of Claude K. Boettcher, multi-millionaire father of the missing man, Friday afternoon. He went away, accompanied by I. B. (Dad) Bruce, Colorado Springs police inspector, who is working on the case, and J. B. Grant, family attorney, but returned shortly. The man, whose identity was kept secret, was short and wore brown-tinted glasses.

Meanwhile, detectives investigated every plausible clue that might lead to apprehension of the young broker's captors, who forced him to drive away with them in a black sedan Sunday night, after thrusting a note into the hand of his wife, demanding $60,000 ransom.

'Phone Tip Foils Abduction of Baby

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., Feb. 18.—(AP.)—Special guards patrolled the grounds of the home of Strauder G. Nelson through the night after the millionaire head of a transfer company reported to police an anonymous telephone call had prevented the kidnaping of his 2-year-old daughter, Kitty West Nelson.

As a voice over the telephone warned "watch the baby," Nelson heard someone enter by a side door. He rushed for a weapon and said he saw two men retreat hastily from the home.

LAUNCH WILSON DEATH INQUIRY

MT. HOLLY, N. J., Feb. 18.—(INS.)—Horace Roberts, Sr., of Moorestown, today submitted to state and county authorities a list of a dozen reasons why he believes the investigation into the deaths of his son, Horace Roberts, Jr., and Ruth Mowdary Wilson, should be reopened.

Roberts promised to co-operate fully with Prosecutor Howard Eastwood, of Burlington County, who today summoned four witnesses, including the father, to appear before him to substantiate statements the original probe was hushed, but requested that "police outside this section of the state" investigate the deaths.

New investigation of the double slaying, which was closed by a Coroner's jury in 1929 with a verdict of suicide and murder, was started when the father of the dead boy announced he had discovered evidence linking the deaths with the recent unsolved murder of Bradway Brown, young Palmyra clubman, who was once engaged to the dead girl.

Roosevelt Under Guard Of N.Y. Police Army

By GEORGE E. DURNO
International News Service.

NEW YORK, Feb. 18.—President-elect Roosevelt was back in his Sixty-fifth street home today enjoying the somewhat dubious pleasure of super-police protection made necessary as a result of the Miami incident.

Mr. Roosevelt, evidently unworried by fears of his personal safety, was preparing to attend the annual dinner and show of the Inner Circle, an organization of political writers, at which he will be the honored guest tonight. At least 250 police will be on watch at the Roosevelt home, along the route to the hotel, and at the hostelry, to prevent any untoward incident.

Police will be on the job again tomorrow or Monday when the incoming President plans to leave for his country home at Hyde Park, and arrangements have been made to strengthen the guard at his Hudson River Valley retreat.

One of the most elaborate turnouts of police marked the return of the President-elect from his Southern vacation last night. Nearly 1,000 bluecoats were on

JAPANESE CABINET DECIDES ON RETIRING FROM LEAGUE

CHINESE TROOPS ROUT FOE IN BATTLE

Tokio's Delegate to Geneva Instructed To Return

International News Service.

With the Japanese Cabinet now unanimous on the subject of withdrawal from the League of Nations and "pacification" of Jehol Province, China answered threats with bullets today.

Only a few hours after a Japanese ultimatum, demanding withdrawal of Chinese troops from the Kailu area, was received, the Chinese commander attacked the Japanese lines between Kailu and Tungliao, precipitating an hour's battle and forcing the Japanese to retire.

With members of the cabinet now unanimous in the belief that Japan must withdraw from the League of Nations, the Japanese government took the first active step toward secession.

DELEGATE TO LEAVE

Yosuke Matsuoka, chief Japanese delegate at Geneva, was granted permission to return to Tokio as soon as the League assembly adopts the report of the committee of 19, condemning Japan's activities in Manchuria.

At the same time, Japan swept forward along her chosen path in the Orient. The cabinet formally approved plans for "pacification" of Jehol province in defiance of the League.

Meanwhile, China girded for outbreak of hostilities. Chinese troops prepared to blow up the Tailingho Railway bridge in an effort to check the Japanese-Manchukuo advance toward Jehol, while other forces tore up railway tracks and clogged tunnels with rocks to cripple the Japanese movement.

WITHDRAWAL DECIDED

TOKIO, Feb. 18.—(INS.)—Overcoming opposition from Premier Viscount Saito and other civil leaders, the military element in the Japanese cabinet today achieved unanimity on the subject of resignation from the League of Nations.

While no definite decision will be made until the League assembly adopts the committee of nineteen's report condemning Japan's activities in Manchuria, apparently only a miracle can now prevent Japanese withdrawal.

PEIPING, Feb. 18.—(INS.)—Answering threats with bullets, Chinese troops today launched an intensive attack against the Japanese positions between Kailu and Tungliao, precipitating an hour's battle and forcing the Japanese to retire.

CHECK RECOUNT FIGURES TODAY

Recount figures were to be compared with returns from the 27 ballot boxes of the Thirtieth and Thirty-second Congressional districts by Judge W. Heber Dithrich today. The recount board yesterday found that in 20 of the 27 boxes there was no evidence of fraud.

Signs of "phantom marking," alteration and other fraud found in several of the boxes will be turned over to District Attorney Andrew T. Park and Federal authorities.

A complete tabulation of the recount will be filed in the prothonotary's office next week.

The entire recount has revealed that fewer than 50 ballots showed deliberate fraud. Most of the irregularities appeared to be mistakes on the part of voters who marked X's for opposing candidates and parties, failed to tear off the number stub and made erasures.

District Education Group Holds Session

NEW CASTLE, Pa., Feb. 18.—Noted educators today were participating in the program of the first convention of the midwestern district of the Pennsylvania State Educational Association. Teachers from Lawrence, Beaver, Butler, Mercer, Armstrong, Jefferson and Clarion counties attended.

Among the educators are Dr. Joseph Rosier, president of the National Educational Association, and Dr. James N. Rule, state Superintendent of Public Education.

The New Offensive -:- -:- By QUIN HALL

Mass Facts to Force Gas Rate Reduction

23 Municipalities In Fight Against Utility

A concerted fight against the rate structure of the Manufacturers Light and Heat Company was in preparation today with some 23 municipalities in six counties of Western Pennsylvania expected to take the offensive.

Preliminary efforts will be expended in an attempt to collect data sufficient to convince the company in private conference that rates should be lowered.

BATTLE PLANS

That failing, it was freely predicted at the organization meeting held yesterday in William Penn Hotel that further funds will be raised for a concentrated attack through the Public Service Commission and the Legislature.

The meeting was called by a Washington (Pa.) committee after it claims it found the Manufacturers' company has been mixing artificial gas from the Davison Coke and Iron Company Neville Island coke plant with the natural gas. This practice, they claim, materially lowered the heating value of the gas, for which the same price of 63 cents a thousand cubic feet is charged.

George W. Ratcliffe, president of the company, has admitted the mixing charge, although he claims the proportion of adulteration is not sufficient to materially lower the heating value of the gas.

COMPLAINT UPHELD

The Washington group, however, insists it has taken tests to show that the percentage of artificial gas is material. They claim—and are substantiated by engineers—that artificial gas does not burn efficiently in apparatus designed for natural gas.

At yesterday's meeting, former Assemblyman D. Glenn Moore, of Washington, was elected permanent president, Judd C. Turner, of Ellwood City, vice president; Charles Stone, of Beaver, secretary, and Harry Campbell, of Washington, treasurer. All except Moore and Campbell are public officials in their communities.

An effort will be made to raise $10 for each 1,000 inhabitants in the district affected—there are about 450,000 persons in the district—for the preliminary fight.

SEE $728,000 COUNTY DEFICIT

Still facing a deficit of more than $728,000 in their job of balancing the 1933 budget, the County Commissioners were to continue equalizing salaries today. Several weeks ago a total of $684,432.86 was slashed from the budget requirements, exclusive of the salary requirements.

For the last two or three weeks the Commissioners have been attempting to equalize salaries, and to date have made cuts totaling $671,595. Of this amount $350,831 was in the elimination of positions and $400,764 in salary cuts for the year, but $80,000 must be paid out for the first two months of this year, leaving the net saving at $671,595.

The salary cuts to date equal about 10 per cent of the salary requirements of the offices already considered. The Commissioners have made every effort to equalize salaries wherever possible or make a direct cut of 15 per cent.

In setting their budget the Commissioners estimated 70 per cent collection of taxes. Auditors pointed out collections of 72 per cent would take an additional $300,000 from the deficit, leaving $428,000. The Board of Education and the City of Pittsburgh calculate 75 per cent collection.

P. S. C. PROBERS ASK FUNDS

HARRISBURG, Feb. 18.—(AP.)—The Senate Utility Investigating Committee stated its inquiry has cost $53,000 and completion of the work will require an additional $46,000.

This was made public yesterday in a letter from the investigating committee to the Senate Appropriations Committee urging that the McClure resolution be reported for final adoption.

The McClure resolution provides for continuation of the inquiry into the Public Service Commission since its creation in 1913, reaffirms the authority and power of the committee, and reappropriates its $100,000 investigating fund.

The investigation was stopped early in December by issuance of a series of court orders challenging the committee's authority and curbing its functions. An appeal from this ruling has been made by the committee to the Supreme Court and probably will be argued next month in Pittsburgh.

LOREE REVEALS HIS 'CURE' FOR RAIL ILLS

Drastic Reform Urged Before Senate Committee

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18.—(AP.)—Far-flung reforms by the railroads themselves, sweeping changes in regulatory laws and inclusion of competing carriers in them were advocated today before the Senate Finance Committee by L. F. Loree, president of the Delaware and Hudson.

Loree, appearing in the committee's study of economic ills and ways to cure them, asserted:

"The need for adjustments is apparent on every hand. Intelligently made, the railroads might rapidly assume their old-time efficiency and usefulness."

LOREE'S PROGRAM

Specific points he called for were:

Adjustment of taxes, wages and working conditions.

Elimination of waste through the abandonment of all unused and obsolete facilities, and mileage no longer justified by traffic.

Development of essential railroad facilities to the highest state of efficiency, through improved grades, shortening of lines and improvement of equipment.

Amelioration of the "five major hazahrs" to employes—sickness, accident, death, unemployment and superannuation.

Extend regulation by the Interstate Commerce Commission to all commerce and all carriers which the government has the power to regulate.

Give the "prosecuting" powers clearly to the Interstate Commerce Commission, but put the "judging" clearly in the hands of the courts.

'RECAPTURE' OPPOSED

Repeal the clause of the interstate commerce laws providing for the recapture of "so-called excess earnings."

Do away with provisions for valuations, Loree asserting "the valuations have not been completed and all work done so far is condemned by decisions of the Supreme Court."

Remove restrictions upon control and operation of boats and other accessory services by railroads.

Eliminate commission powers to fix rate divisions except when carriers are unable to agree after a joint rate has been set.

Leave to the courts the power to award damages.

Repeal provisions preventing carriers from moving any commodities in which they have an interest except timber and its products.

BANK DICTATOR MICHIGAN AIM

DETROIT, Feb. 18.—(INS.)—The people of Michigan displayed firm faith in their banks and their government today, as Gov. William A. Comstock announced he would issue a second proclamation Monday regarding the eight-day banking moratorium.

A financial dictatorship, with the Governor wielding almost absolute power over both state and national banks, is planned as an emergency measure.

The banks have been closed since last Tuesday. Gov. Comstock proclaimed the holiday to save the Union Guardian Trust Company of Detroit, which was threatened with failure. According to the original proclamation, the holiday will end next Wednesday, Washington's birthday.

MAYORS OF 40 CITIES SEEK R.F.C. LOANS

Appeal Placed Before Senate Banking Committee

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18.—(AP.)—The plea of the mayors of 40 American cities that the Reconstruction Corporation be allowed to make loans to them today was formally put before the Senate Banking Committee.

Mayor Frank Murphy, of Detroit, acting as spokesman for a committee representing the mayors, was the first to appear.

He read a resolution adopted and made public by the mayors at a conference here this week, urging loans to the cities as well as states.

He told the committee that "debts built up (by the cities) in the overexpansion period will continue for some years."

Tax delinquencies ranged upward of 30 per cent in the larger cities and were 36 per cent in Detroit this year, he added.

Against this, he said, "for debt charges, out of the tax dollar next year, 67 cents will be taken."

Asked by Senator Fletcher (Dem.), of Florida, how much Detroit would apply for if loans were authorized, Murphy said.

"Probably $35,000,000 to $37,000,000."

Senator Reynolds (Dem.), of North Carolina, asked Murphy how much would go to bondholders. Murphy replied:

"All of it."

Reynolds asked:

"None of it would go to the unemployed?"

Murphy said he felt none would. He asserted:

"We have a right to come to the federal government. If the R. F. C. ceases to make loans to private concerns all well and good, but so long as the door is open the large municipal governments should come first."

Mayor James M. Curley, of Boston, also spoke in behalf of the R. F. C. loans for cities.

Compared with $2,000,000 in normal times, he said, Boston spent $12,000,000 in relief last year. He added:

"Unless some industrial activity comes this year we must spend $14,000,000."

SENATE ENDS INSULL QUIZ

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18.—(AP.)—The Senate Banking Committee today turned from the Insull utilities crash and made plans to wind up its stock market investigation with an inquiry into the National City Bank of New York and its affiliate, the National City Company.

Amazed by the ramifications of the Insull operations, committee members also studied suggestions for legislation to prevent a repetition of that failure which Chairman Norbeck estimated cost American investors $2,000,000,000.

The committee's authority to investigate stock market practices expires March 4 with the end of this session of Congress. Norbeck then will turn his chairmanship over to a Democrat, but he announced today he intends to press for measures to protect the American investing public from the "rackets" which he said the inquiry had uncovered.

STATES AWAIT HOUSE VOTE

the regular election in November.)

Advices today indicated that a strong sentiment is sweeping many sections of the country to speed up action in the states which would wipe the law from the statute books. The repeal resolution, passed by the Senate last Thursday and expected to be passed by the House also next week, must be ratified by conventions in three-fourths of the states, or 36 states, before the Eighteenth Amendment will be erased from the federal Constitution.

At present all state legislatures, with the exception of those of seven states, are in session. Those seven states are: California, Florida, Kentucky, Louisiana, Mississippi, Tennessee and Virginia.

NEW YORK FOR SPEED

In New York state, Republican and Democratic members of the Legislature have joined hands in an effort to have New York become the first state to pass upon repeal when the question is submitted to the states by Congress.

In New Jersey the question of calling a constitutional convention will be presented to a joint Republican conference committee meeting in Trenton next Monday.

Ohio and West Virginia Legislatures probably will remain in session until May. The Ohio House is expected to adopt a bill for a referendum on state repeal next Wednesday. Similar action is anticipated in West Virginia.

HOUSE WETS ORGANIZE

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18.—(AP.)—Republican anti-prohibitionists organized their strength behind the move Congressional leaders are confident will carry the Senate-approved Blaine repealer through the House Monday.

The meeting of the wet bloc was called as party chieftains debated the convention method of ratification and surveyed the prospects for state action this year with 41 state legislatures holding assemblies.

Representative Rainey, of Illinois, the Democratic leader, said the Blaine resolution for repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment would be adopted by the House "by at least 20 votes."

MONACA CLUB'S OWNERS MAY BE REVEALED

Further Grand Jury Action Possible After Trials

The grand jury which indicted 12 alleged employes of the Monaca Club, "hot spot" recently raided opposite the Oakland police station, has recessed until February 27, to await the outcome of the trials, scheduled for next Thursday.

Should there be startling revelations during the trials, it is said, the grand jury will be reconvened to make a presentment.

Judge Samuel H. Gardner, before whom the 12 will be called to plead, recently announced that in the event they plead guilty or are convicted, they will be given an opportunity to name the higher-ups in the club. It is planned to use the defendants or their testimony before the grand jury, if the owners or operators are named.

Six of the defendants were indicted for selling liquor illegally, and six for operating gambling devices. They were the waiters and game table attendants.

27 SUMMONED

There were 27 witnesses. One was from a store, where, perhaps, the club's luxurious furnishings had been bought. Another was from the McKenna brass works, which recalled that all "speakies" must have their brass rails.

From 1:15 to 6:15 p. m. Park was in the grand jury room questioning the witnesses, whose names he refused to divulge. His assistants were charged to tell nothing of what was going on.

Finally, perspiring, District Attorney Andred T. Park came out and accompanied the foreman of the jury to the court of Judge Samuel H. Gardner, where the indictments were returned. He was asked:

"Did they indict the higher-ups?"

His answer was brief:

"I have nothing to say."

"Do you expect the proprietors will be indicted after more witnesses have been heard?"

LIST OF INDICTED

Indicted on the liquor charge are Roy Sineway, William O'Day, Walter Ring, Gus Harris, Frank Pope and Samuel Lewis. Indicted on the gambling charge are George McIlvary, Charles Gardner, P. J. Haley, William Dapper, P. J. Caslin and Roy Thomas.

On the indictments are listed the names of the witnesses heard by the jury, but no inkling is given as to their business or connection with the case. The names are:

By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER

We don't know whether they are tearing up the Eighteenth Amendment or just folding it.

Prompt voting by the House on Monday insures almost instantaneous action by the states by next January.

There is a neat clause in the lease that gives state legislatures six more years to mull it over. The whole thing can be held up longer than the Statue of Liberty's bronze torch.

That's a stretch of 20 years from 1920 to 1940. They are widening the desert and reducing the number of oases.

By that time they will think up another dodger and around 1970 we shall get our personal liberty with long white whiskers.

We ain't so sure about the sincerity of the current annulment. It looks like we will have to eventually repeal this kind of repeal in order to get repeal.

'Million-Dollar' Baby Goes to Her Father

CHICAGO, Feb. 18.—(AP.)—The "million dollar" baby, 4-year-old Myrtle Fahrney Saemann, goes to her father.

The long court battle for legal custody of the heiress to the patent medicine millions of her maternal great-grandfather ended yesterday when Circuit Judge Daniel P. Trude ordered that the child be turned over by the mother to the father, Franklin I. Saemann, Jr.

Under the terms of Judge Trude's decision, the child is to remain at the home of her maternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Emery H. Fahrney, of Oak Park, or at their summer home in Oshkosh, Wis., until May 15.

After that date and until the mother "shall have recovered from her illness," Judge Trude ruled, the child is to live with her father and his sister, Charlotte Saemann, a school teacher now employed at Louisville, Ky., in an apartment at Oak Park or River Forest, Ill.

Testimony at the trial was given that the mother, Mrs. Myrtle Fahrney Saemann, was "physically and mentally incapable of caring for the child." Mrs. Saemann is living in Chicago with a nurse under her physician's orders.

Both sides agreed to Judge Trude's ruling.

Mrs. Massie Plans Suit In Hawaii Attack Case

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 18.—(AP.)—Mrs. Thalia Fortesque Massie today is considering legal action against "certain Hawaiian authorities" to defend her name from statements in connection with the release of four men of mixed blood accused of attacking her.

She mentioned no names as she declared:

"I am considering legal action and will consult my attorneys."

Mrs. Massie made her statement yesterday after learning Senator David Trask had introduced in the Hawaiian Senate a resolution asking that Attorney General Hewitt "be removed from office without delay."

Mrs. Massie said:

"Knowing what I do about Hawaiian politics, I don't have much faith in the resolution."

She showed a telegram which she said she received from Clarence Darrow, of Chicago, who defended her husband and mother in Hawaii. The telegram read:

"Report of detective agency absolutely ridiculous and will soon be regarded as cheap trick on part of the Hawaiian authorities."

It referred to a private detective agency's report which said an investigation had failed to substantiate Mrs. Massie's identification of her assailants.

duty when the official party arrived, but there was no occasion for police action.

Mr. Roosevelt today said he intends to send a special letter of praise and thanks to Mrs. W. F. Cross, of Miami, frail little woman who helped save his life by grabbing the arm of Giuseppe Zangara, would-be assassin, when the latter fired on the incoming executive.

The President-elect has had several conferences with Democratic Chairman James A. Farley, and with his confidential secretary, Louis M. Howe, since reaching the city, with construction of the new cabinet as his chief concern.

It appeared, with inauguration only two weeks off, the President-elect has been able to fill out but half of his cabinet with any degree of certainty.

Those considered fairly definite are: Secretary of State, Senator Cordell Hull, (Dem.), of Tennessee; Attorney General, Senator Thomas J. Walsh, (Dem.), of Montana; Secretary of Labor, Miss Frances Perkins, Labor Commissioner of New York State, and Secretary of Commerce, William Woodin, of New York, President of the American Car and Foundry Company.

Senator Carter Glass, (Dem.), of Virginia, is considering an offer to be Secretary of the Treasury, and Senator Bronson Cutting, Insurgent Republican, of New Mexico, is doing likewise with the Interior portfolio.

The chief hitch which has arisen revolves around Glass' appointment. There is reason to believe that Mr. Roosevelt has decided to undertake a program for inflation of currency and remonitization of silver after March 4, and to that end made his offer to Glass conditional on the point that the Virginian support such a program.

Glass has declared repeatedly against inflation, but may accept it. He told the President-elect yesterday he would give him a final answer by Monday.

SCHOOL PAY CUT IN WILKINSBURG

A school pay cut of 10 to 15 per cent and dismissal of 15 teachers was decided upon by the Wilkinsburg Board of Education last night as an economy step. The plan, expected to cut $80,000 from the school budget, becomes effective next September.

Reductions will be made as follows:

Instructors receiving more than $1,900 yearly, 15 per cent; $1,845 to $1,900, 14 per cent; $1,800 to $1,845, 13 per cent; $1,800, 12 per cent, and $1,750 or less, 10 per cent. Janitors will be cut $5 monthly.

The board instructed Superintendent Graham to ask 15 teachers to resign. Classes will be enlarged to put more pupils in the care of each teacher after the personnel slash.

ALTOONA, Pa., Feb. 18.—(INS.)—Altoona school teachers voted to voluntarily accept a 30 per cent reduction in pay for the 1932-33 school term, a slash amounting to approximately two months' salary.

Cermak's Daughter 'Knows' He'll Recover

'I'll Make it So' Young Woman Declares

MIAMI, Fla., Feb. 18.—(AP.)—Mrs. Helen Cermak Kenlay—she thinks poise is a virtue and was taught by Anton Cermak never to lose her head—says "Daddy" is going to be all right.

She was with her father, the wounded Mayor of Chicago, most of the day. Mrs. Kenlay, who is 25 and looks 18, said:

"He's going to get well. I keep on saying it and I'm going to make it so."

She's the baby of the Cermak family and was the first of her family to reach her father's bedside from the Middle West. She wishes one of "us children could have been shot instead of Daddy, because we are younger and haven't so many worries."

Mrs. Kenlay stepped to a hotel desk in Chattanooga—she was en route from Miami to Chicago in her automobile—and heard of her father's injury and caught the next train for Atlanta. An Associated Press reporter found her as she left the train. She said:

"I must get to the airport."

At the field, she said she preferred to take a regular passenger ship leaving in a few minutes. But there were no seats. A plane chartered by the Associated Press to take pictures from Miami to Atlanta was nearby. The newspaperman asked:

"Will you ride that?"

She got aboard. It was cold and raw. She wrapped the reporter's overcoat around her, saying:

"Please go by the station and see if my baby got away all right."

Arriving here, she went to the hospital and found her father sleeping.

His first words to her were:

"Where is Dolly?"

Dolly is Mrs. Kenlay's baby. The Mayor told his daughter to bring her baby to see him as soon as she arrived. The two joked. He told her she was looking fit, and smiled when he learned she had taken a plane. She explained:

"He knows I've always been a little afraid of flying."

ZANGARA TRIAL SET MONDAY

Jackson Memorial Hospital, despite two blood transfusions and frantic attempts of physicians to save her life. Should she succumb, Zangara will face first degree murder charges.

CERMAK RESTS

The second seriously wounded victim, Mayor Anton J. Cermak, of Chicago, was apparently winning his battle against death. The Chicago Mayor, who fell first before the assassin's fusillade, was reported resting comfortably at the hospital and doctors expressed belief he would win through.

Telegrams to Mayor Cermak are arriving from well wshers all over the world. One from William Randolph Hearst read:

"I am terribly sorry to hear of your injuries. Why do these scoundrels always pick out the best ond most useful people to hurt? I know you will get well because your city needs you and the whole country needs a capable, conscientious man like you. Sincerest regards and best wishes."

Should the commission find the erstwhile assassin sane, and should the defense counsel appointed by the court enter his indicated guilty plea Monday, it is anticipated Judge Collins will pass sentence immediately.

DEFENSE COUNCIL

Defense counsel, appointed yesterday by the Court and County Solicitor Charles Morehead, includes Louis M. Twyman, president of the County Bar Association; James M. McCaskill, former president of the association, and Alfred Raia, a Miamian of Italian descent.

A special Grand Jury, sworn in yesterday by State's Attorney N. Vernon Hawthorne as a precaution against death of either Mrs. Gill or Mayor Cermak, was to resume its duties today. Meantime, authorities still held in abeyance charges covering the assaults upon the two most seriously wounded victims.

EMBRACE LEADS TO SLAYING

Tony Pozzynski, 26, of 1547 Eckert street, North Side, was to be turned over to the Coroner today in connection with the shooting to death of his uncle, John Ryzner, 40, of 1436 Forsythe street, in the Pozzynski home late yesterday, homicide detectives said.

Pozzynski admitted shooting Ryzner when he attempted to embrace the young man's mother, Mrs. Nellie Pozzynski, 49, as she was baking in her kitchen, the detectives said. The bullet, fired from a .22-caliber rifle, pierced Ryzner's heart. Pozzynski walked to St. John's Hospital, reported the shooting, and surrendered to police.

Tony told police he had warned his uncle to stay away from the home. Ryzner, who was married and lived nearby, went there yesterday afternoon and attempted to put his arms about Mrs. Pozzynski. Tony obtained a rifle, because his uncle "was too big for me to handle," and fired into his chest, police said.

'BUY AMERICAN' BUTTONS WORN

Thousands of "Buy American" buttons are available in the downtown and main offices of the Sun-Telegraph for Buy American campaign sympathizers.

Already many are being worn in this district through the agency of the Sun-Telegraph, and throughout the rest of the nation by other Hearst newspapers.

Organizations in Charleroi, through its Postmaster, and State Senator Joseph G. Armstrong, Hubbard & Co. employes and many others have taken allotments of the buttons and distributed them. Insurance and other organizations have assigned them to their sales staffs, to carry the message of American-made goods throughout the district.

The downtown office of the Sun-Telegraph is at Fifth avenue and Market street, and the main office is in Telegraph square, off Bigelow boulevard.

GREENSBURG, Pa., Feb. 18.—Decision of three doctors appointed by the court that Joseph Kocot, Valley Camp coal miner, was suffering from chronic asthma and was unable to leave his home, resulted in the continuance of his murder trial until May.

Theodore Roosevelt's Poet Sister, 72, Dies

Kin of Franklin D. And Wife Victim Of Pneumonia

NEW YORK, Feb. 18.—(AP.)—From all over the nation messages of condolences came today, mourning the death of a distinguished member of the many-branched Roosevelt family, Mrs. Corinne Roosevelt Robinson.

Mrs. Robinson, who was a sister of President Theodore Roosevelt and an aunt of Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, died last night of pneumonia in her seventy-second year.

She was the author of several volumes of poetry and a book called "My Brother T. R."

Her address seconding the nomination of Gen. Leonard Wood in Chicago at the 1920 Presidential convention was considered a masterpiece. She later campaigned ardently for Harding.

She declined, however, to accept designation as a Republican elector-at-large for the 1932 presidential election.

She said:

"You must understand why I cannot comment on the national campaign. My own beloved niece is the wife of the Democratic candidate. She is the daughter of the brother (Elliott) who was nearer to me in age than Theodore. For her I have the deepest affection and respect. So, much as I would like to pay the highest tribute to President Hoover, I cannot do so in this campaign."

Mrs. Robinson was a fifth cousin of the President-elect. Surving are three children: Theodore Douglas Robinson, who was Assistant Secretary of the Navy under President Coolidge; Mrs. Joseph W. Alsop of Avon, Conn.; and Monroe Douglas Robinson of New York.

Pneumonia Fatal To Man Hit By Auto

Michael Larkin, 58, of 3835 Liberty avenue, died yesterday in St. Francis Hospital of pneumonia developing after he was injured by an automobile January 12. A Coroner's report said he was struck by a car driven by Clarence Evans, 31, of 419 Zara street, Knoxville.

WOMAN FIRST TO BAG BISON

WINSLOW, Ariz., Feb. 18.—(AP.)—A woman who told state game officials she had never ridden a horse and had never fired a heavy rifle, was the first of a mounted party of 10 to bag a buffalo in Arizona's annual bison hunt.

She is Mrs. Cecil Hough, of Phoenix, only woman among the eight Arizona and two out-of-state residents who set out Wednesday on the hunt, held each year under supervision of the State Game Department.

Each hunter was allowed to kill one buffalo and the last three of the 10 shaggy beasts cut from the state-owned herd dropped before rifle bullets today.

Mrs. Hough said:

"I've never had a greater thrill in my life."

FEES FOR COURT WARDS CUT

As a step toward economy in the maintenance of Juvenile Court wards, the County Commissioners have reduced the payment for boarding the children in private homes from $5.60 to $5. The reduction was announced after a conference with President Judge Richard A. Kennedy of the County Court. Although the saving will be slight, the Commissioners hope to make other economies in the juvenile branch.

A recent audit showed there were 485 foster homes maintaining an average of four wards each. Under the old rate of $5.60 a week, the foster parent receives $4.41, the other $1.19 being retained by the county to provide clothing for the child.

Four Wives, One Man File Divorce Suits

Divorces were granted to Elizabeth N. Menigat from Anthony J. Menigat, Mary I. Connelly from Joseph J. Connelly, Elizabeth C. Windle from Edward J. Windle, Charles Gatti from Ann Gatti, Elinore W. Sturgeon from Russell C. Sturgeon, Ellen M. Nee from Edward L. Nee, Jr., and to Susan M. Mojta from John Mojta.

Attack on Hoover Laid to Zangara

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 18.—(AP.)—A report had been made to the police today that Giuseppe Zangara, held for the shooting of several persons in an attempt on the life of President-elect Roosevelt at Miami, once reviled President Hoover at a public meeting here and threatened to kill a religious lecturer who ejected him.

The lecturer, R. B. Griffith, said he recognized photographs of the assailant as those of a man who arose at a meeting in the autumn of 1931 and began a bitter denunciation of the President. Griffith said he shoved Zangara from the hall and received a threat of death.

Grain Mill Burns Near Uniontown

UNIONTOWN, Pa., Feb. 18.—(AP.)—A grain mill at Ruble's Mill, near Uniontown, was destroyed by fire last night with damage estimated by firemen at $10,000.

An adjoining house occupied by Andrew Carroll and family was scorched by the flames.

Mrs. Roosevelt Amused By Flood of Mail

NEW YORK, Feb. 18.—(Universal.)—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt last night told a nation-wide radio audience that mail which poured into the executive mansion at Albany showed her that "the Governor's wife, like the Governor, is really a servant of the people."

She told of some of the amusing and touching requests for aid she received daily and concluded:

"I know that when I am in the White House I shall look forward eagerly to the morning's mail, just as I have done ever since I was a little girl.

"I always try to answer, but that does not mean that I can always comply with requests I receive. I often received letters from boys and girls in school telling me they were competing for prizes and asking for advice. This I was sometimes able to give. But now and then when they asked me to write their speeches or essays for them I was compelled to decline."

Mate Slighted Her, Ex-Teacher Asserts

Charging indignities on the basis that he ignored her to talk to his mother, Mrs. Alice DuBarry McKinley, Elgin avenue, has asked Judge H. H. Rowand for a divorce from Ernest W. McKinley. He paid little attention to her while they lived with his parents, Mrs. McKinley asserted.

McKinley, a graduate of the United States Naval Academy, was connected with the prohibition department when they were married in 1929, his wife said.

SALARY CUTS CRIPPLING CLERGY

NEW YORK, Feb. 18.—(AP.)—For a time the clergyman stood beyond reach of the salary-cut wave, but it is now engulfing him and making increasingly difficult his self-assumed job as minister to victims of the economic storm.

A survey of some of the major denominations shows that salary reductions did not hit the ministry as a class until a year or two after they had affected other groups, but that the cuts now reach as high as 66 per cent, with the expectation that they will be severer this year than ever before.

Average cuts according to denominations range from less than 10 to more than 33 per cent.

But statistics, where existent at all, are meager and do not tell the whole story, say those giving them.

For one thing, they say, continued high salaries in a few city parishes raise the general level. In addition, most ministers are unwilling to report reductions, voluntary or otherwise.

Lastly, many ministers have increased their own contributions to the church, besides broadening their private charity.

Estimates by denominational headquarters on salary reductions follow:

Southern Baptist—General average of one-third since the depression began: 40 per cent for country districts, 30 per cent for villages, 25 per cent for towns, 20 per cent for cities, 15 per cent for missionaries and educators.

Methodist Episcopal—17 per cent from 1929 to 1932. This is on total gross salaries and does not register the decline in the rental value of parsonages, which are included in the total amount.

United Lutheran—Highest salary dropped from $9,000 and parsonage in 1931 to $8,100 and parsonage in 1932. Lowest salary dropped from $500 to $240. Average salary dropped from $2,000 to $1,841.

Northern Baptists—"30 per cent is a low estimate."

Disciples of Christ—25 per cent or more; "some reach as high as 66 per cent."

Reformed in the U. S.—From $1,800 and parsonage to $1,500 and parsonage.

Congregational-Christian—A survey in Illinois shows that most of the ministers have been reduced and that many expect cuts this year ranging from four to 40 per cent.

Revival of Interest In Church Choir Seen

Movement Attributed To Leisure Caused By Depression

PRINCETON, N. J., Feb. 18.—Interest in the choir, once the center of many a church's social activities, is coming back fast, believes Dr. John Finley Williamson, president of the Westminster Choir school.

He attributes the movement to the leisure time problem—the same thing, he said, that made choirs and related activities so important in the days before the automobile and the motion picture, but this time caused by the depression. He said:

"Except in a few instances the churches aren't prepared for this awakening. Perhaps the one great reason is that so many ministers are inadequately trained musically.

"It would be a fine thing for religious services in this country if the seminaries would give as much attention to church music as they do to Hebrew and Greek. Every divinity school should have a required course in music.

"Very few of them have now. Yet music, especially congregational singing, next to the reading of the scriptures, is the most important part of the church service. Music takes up two-fifths of the time and much of the attention.

"The sermon is important, of course, but people are more interested in their own expression than they are in anyone else's. And their expression is just as valuable as that of the preacher."

Disciples of Christ To Convene Oct. 11

In Mayfair

—With—

Patricia Pitt

Ever since their return from their honeymoon, two young folks have had a busy week of house-hunting.

The are the William J. Kountzes III, Mrs. Kountz, you'll recall, is the former Bobbie Wilson, daughter of the Unger Wilsons, of South Aiken avenue.

Since their return from Miami a week ago, they have been with Mr. Kountz' parents, the George McClelland Kountzes, also of South Aiken avenue.

Visiting Parents

The young folks, whose marriage took place late in December in the Twentieth Century Club, will be in their new home after March 1. They've just about decided on their home, to be in the East End.

Tonight the new supper club opens at the Hotel Schenley—in the ballroom. And breakfast will be served.

* * *

A group of vacationers at Chalfonte-Haddon Hall, Atlantic City, includes Florence Willock, Mrs. C. C. Law, Mrs. Ross E. Willis and Mrs. E. G. Wahr.

Among the patronesses for "The Perfect Alibi" by A. A. Milne, to be given by the dramatic club of Arnold School March 3 in the Withers gymnasium, South Braddock avenue, by the Arnold Dramatic Club, are Mrs. George E. Alter, Mrs. H. V. Blaxter, Mrs. Frank A. Bond and Mrs. A. Polland Brill.

Sponsor Club Play

Others will be Mrs. F. C. Buckmaster, Mrs. I. A. Carrington, Mrs. D. M. Craig, Mrs. Edmund P. Dandridge, Mrs. Albert E. Day, Mrs. Harold Doolittle, Mrs. James C. Farquhar, Mrs. Fred A. Fichtel, Mrs. A. L. George, Mrs. John M Lutz, Mrs. Elder W. Marshall.

Still others are Mrs. T. S. McCormick, Mrs. T. E McMurray, Mrs. W. L. Munro, Mrs. John M Phillips, Mrs. Alfred C Pollock, Mrs. Ralph B. Savage, Mrs. C. D. Scully, Mrs. Kenneth Seaver, Mrs. R. Templeton Smith, Mrs. Theodore F. Smith, Mrs. George C. Watt, Mrs. C. D. Wettach, Mrs. Robert E. Withers, Mrs. J. Merrill Wright and Mrs. Robert H. Youngman.

Lida Baldrige Betrothed to H. W. Tenney

This afternoon Mr. and Mrs. Carl C. Baldrige, of Edgewood, announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Lida Corey Baldrige, to Harry Willis Tenney, of Pittsburgh, son of Mrs. Francis W. Tenney, of Leominster, Mass.

Miss Baldrige is a graduate of Wilson College, and her fiance was graduated from the Worcester Polytechnic Institute.

No date has been set for the wedding.

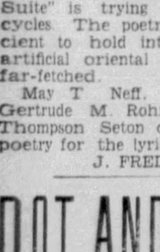
Pittsburgh Branch of National League of American Pen Women gave a musicale last night at the Woman's City Club to honor several Pittsburgh writers and composers and to present some of their works. Harvey Gaul spoke a greeting in his best manner and congratulated these ladies upon their efforts.



Mr. Lissfelt

The String Quartet of the Fillion Studios, Mark Meyer, first violin; Oscar Davis, second violin; Gwen Treasure, viola, and Ero Davidson, cello, played two groups of quartet music. Charlotte Shallenberger James Achtzehn and Edward Dunbar sang songs of Gertrude M. Rohrer, and Marianne Genet, Miss Genet playing all accompaniments.

The importance of the program for musicians lay in the music of Mrs. Rohrer and Miss Genet. Mrs. Rohrer frankly strives for melodic effects and not without some success. Of her two songs, "From My Window," was by far the better; I prefer, however, the delightful "Nocturne" for string quartet. Although she creates a fine melody, there is more substantial structure to the work than in her songs.

Miss Genet, has written some very singable songs. She writes more subtly for the voice, although she strikes sometim a difficult tessitura.

"En Voyage" is quite a happy sailor ditty; "At Night on the Terrace High" has a most graceful accompaniment and is more descriptive than her Persian song "The Peacock Screams Upon the Wall." "Lotus Blossom" is a tender romance. "If I Were Pan" is barren. Her "Arabian Caravan Suite" is trying as most song cycles. The poetry is not sufficient to hold interest and the artificial oriental effects are too far-fetched.

May T Neff, Bella Flaccus, Gertrude M. Rohrer and Grace Thompson Seton contributed the poetry for the lyrics.

J. FRED LISSFELT.

Cipher Editor.

Have you a headache? If you haven't you should—that is if you worked Cipher No. 59. The Cipher Editor believes that a tip should be given, so here goes.

This is a "Telegraph Cipher." That should be plenty for you. The dots and dashes represent different letters. See if you can solve it. Write the Cipher Editor, if you think you completed this in record time.

Children Appear In Benefit Program

A group of Squirrel Hill children, aged from 7 to 12, was presenting two costume plays with a musical intermission this afternoon at the home of Mrs. O. G. Richter, 5454 Kipling road. The receipts were to go to the welfare fund.

Club Kuran Mid-Winter Dance on Friday Night

The Club Kuran mid-winter dance will be held at the Hotel Webster Hall Friday night.

Decorations will be carried out in an appropriate color scheme with Miss Esther Moran in charge.

Among the aides selected from the University of Pittsburgh, Carnegie Institute of Technology and Duquesne University are Miss Jean Gable, Miss Mary Timmons, Miss Sally Pfahl, Miss Eleanor Purtell, Miss Helen Pfeil, Miss Helen Nichols, Miss Ruth Purtell, Miss Eileen Bookmeyer, Miss Isabel Friebertshauser, Miss Ruth Rhodes, Miss Dorothy Rhodes, Miss Ruth Hopkins and Miss June and Miss Ruth Parish, of Seton College, and Miss Anna Colwes of P. Kenneth Moran is in charge of ticket sales and Frank J. Kunkel is general chairman.

Musical Club Composers' Program on February 28

The annual program presented by the composers' group of the Tuesday Musical Club will be heard on February 28 in Memorial Hall. Helen Roessing, chairman of the composers' division, has arranged the program, which includes compositions of Mrs. James H. Greene and Mrs. F. F. Rohrer, whose trios will be sung by "The Fireflies," Letha Frazier Rankin, Jean McCrory Newman, Viola K. Byrgerson, with Marion C. Bollinger at the piano. Madelaine Emich will play her own sonata. Mrs. Cramen B. Smith and Eda S. Kreiling will sing songs of Mary H. Parsons and Nellie Risher Roberts. Alice Stemple will play a group of her own piano solos and the program closes with the String Ensemble under the direction of Ruth Thoburn Knox playing compositions by Miss Stemple and Carolyn St. John.

Vets Underpaid Legion Charges Here

Complaints have been filed with Miss Emmeline Pitt, local commissioner for the United States Department of Labor, by the Allegheny County American Legion alleging that ex-service men working on the construction of Allegheny River dams are under-paid and over-charged for food at the commissary. The construction work is being done by the Vang Construction Company, she said. The men are paid 30 cents an hour and are charged $1 a day for subsistence. The minimum wage fixed by the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania and paid to workers on state projects in Allegheny County is 50 cents an hour, Miss Pitt said.

Carrick Churches To Hold Dry Rally

Four Carrick churches will participate in a prohibition rally to be held in the auditorium of the Union Baptist Church, Brownsville and Hornaday roads at 8 p. m. tomorrow. The Rev. Dr. James M. McQuilkin will speak on "The Evolution of Prohibition."

Alumnae of Chi Omega Gives February Luncheon

The monthly luncheon of the Chi Omega sorority alumnae is being held today at the College Club with appointments in the national colors. Mrs. George E. Stebbins is reviewing "The Fountain," by Charles S. Morgan; Miss Helen Davidson, "Nicodemus," by Edward Arlington Robinson, and Miss Katherine Reeblo, Noel Coward's "Design for Living." Miss Alice Davidson, chairman in charge of the arrangements, is assisted by Mrs. Edward Stotz, Mrs. Edgar Eckhardt and Mrs. Walter Stryker.

Credit Women to Give Dinner Party Tuesday

Dinner will be followed by bridge, "500" and jig-saw puzzles, according to inclination. There are to be table prizes and decorations will be in red, white and blue. Miss Norma Wiberly heads the entertainment committee which also includes Miss Marcella Brosky Miss Florence Dorsey and Miss Marion Ryland.

Kaufmann Settlement Players Enter Contest

The Irene Kaufmann Settlement Players are the first amateur players to register in the ninth amateur players' contest, which will be held in the Settlement Theater for four nights beginning April 25.

These players who are affiliated with the Pittsburgh Drama League, have heretofore refrained from entering the annual contest in the belief that their familiarity with the stage upon which the plays are presented would give them an advantage over other groups. Now that the players have appeared in the theater for two years in succession, the home group has decided to enter. They will be coached by Louis Isaacs, director of dramatics at the Settlement. Since the number of contestants is limited, there will be places only for two more school groups and three more adult groups. March 1 is the final date for registration.

Poale Zedeck Juniors To Give Dance March 1

Tri-Delta Group Hears Lecture on 'Felt Hats'

Pittsburgh Alliance of Delta Delta Delta is having its February meeting today at the chapter house, Bigelow boulevard. Dr. R. R. MacGregor, of Mellon Institute, the guest speaker, is talking about "Felt Hats." Mrs. D. B. Hendryx is chairman of the hostess committee.

Luncheon to Be Given By Daughters of 1812

The February meeting of the Dolly Madison Chapter, United States Daughters of 1812, will be a Washington luncheon on Monday in the Woman's City Club. Mrs. H. C. Neel will be in charge of a program of music.

Miss Thelma Newman To Marry D. N. Racusin

Mrs. Samuel Newman, of Barnsdale street, announces the engagement of her daughter, Miss Thelma Newman, to David N. Racusin, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Racusin, of Bartlett street.

Uxority, Unity Clubs Unite For Party

MRS. CHARLES M. BREGG

Joining forces again, the Uxority Club and the Unity Club will have their annual evening party tonight in Frick Training School. The Uxority Club, you know, is made up of the wives of high school faculty members and in the Unity Club are "the other halves." Mrs. Carl McKees heads the women and Frank Murphy the men's group.

There's to be a musicale under the direction of the general chairman, Mrs. R. L. Speer, Mrs. Arthur B. Siviter assisting. The Taylor Allderdice High School quartet and the Uxority Choral will furnish the music and for good measure and a good laugh a pantomime called "Wild Nell, or the Pet of the Place," will be presented.

Mrs. Siviter is directing it, and Mrs. Herman Ziel will furnish the musical setting. The mimes are Mrs. J. T. Hawthorne, Mrs. Philip Rinehart, E. C. Carter, M. L. Haas, H. A. Sturdy, J. W. Heatley, M. M. Redenbaugh, A. J. Miller and C. B. Kistler.

Dancing and games will precede supper.

Marjorie J. Anderson Marries R. W. Sweadner

Mr. and Mrs. David Petty Anderson, Jr., announce the marriage of their daughter, Miss Marjorie Joan Anderson, to Richard Winglis Sweadner, son of C. A. Sweadner, which took place yesterday afternoon at 4:30 o'clock in the Asbury Methodist Episcopal Church with the Rev. Jacob S. Payton officiating.

Mrs. O. Fairchild Laughead and John R. Kinmeman were the only attendants.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Berkman, of Hampton Hall, announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Ruth Berkman, to Robert J. Cohen, son of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Cohen, of Raleigh street.

AFTERNOON SUITS FAVORED IN THE RECENT STYLE SHOWINGS

FASHION IS going in heavily for afternoon suits, apparently. At least this is the opinion to be deduced from the number of them shown in the fashionable dressmaking establishments. Fully half of the afternoon dresses shown in recent collections are accompanied not by matching coats, but by short jackets which give the effect of a jacket-and-separate-skirt combination.

WITNESS this new model in today's sketch. The illustration shows two views of the costume, one in black and one in gray, one without the jacket and one with jacket. In both cases the skirt is not separate, but is part of a smart afternoon frock which has a white top, made of the same basket-weave woolen which fashions the lower part of the dress.

THERE WOULD seem to be, at first sight, not much alliance between the design of the coat and dress—a feature which is entirely in keeping with the style program for 1933. Yet the same V-shaped lines which identify the front of the dress appear at the back of the jacket; the black astrakan bands which taper down, diagonally, from the collar at the front, loop under the arms, then turn back up toward the collar at the back, making an inverted V-line between the shoulders. The band of fur which forms the high-waistline belt at the front takes a downward movement toward the back and meets in a second V-shape at the center-back.

BOOK WRITTEN BY CARNEGIE CAUSED SENSATION

Whiteman and Mildred Bailey Making Up; Novis Wins Radio's Tenor Tussle

By AIRCASTER

The tussle of the tenors is over. For weeks now, it has been a toss-up whether Morton Downey or Donald Novis would emerge as head man on that soap program. Downey, it seems, has lost—and Novis has won, and Leon Belasco, with his band, will remain to carry on with Novis.

Downey drops out of the picture March 29. The principal reason for his relinquishment was that his price for a renewal was too high.

What, No Ethel?

Surprises never cease in this radio business. Perhaps that is why it is so engaging. Everybody thought Ted Lewis would fall into that spot which Kenn Murray, I regret to say, is leaving. Fannie Brice, of course, is taking the Murray place, but it will be George Olsen's band, without, alas, Ethel Shutta, which provides the background.

And what does this mean? Mildred Bailey, the song lady, and Paul Whiteman having a nice lunch together. Are Mildred and Paul making up? Will Mildred return to the Whiteman fold, and if so, will she stay? Looks interesting.

Like Drama?

Another installment of "Playgirls in Love," the new May Christie serial story which started yesterday in the Sun-Telegraph, is presented by an all-star WCAE cast tonight at 6:45. Then at 7 the same station offers "The Hotel Racket," a dramatized version of an article published in tomorrow's American Weekly, magazine distributed with the Sunday Sun-Telegraph. "The Hotel Racket" also is featured by WWSW at 8, KQV at 9:15; WWVA, Wheeling, W. Va., at 5:30, and WMMN, Fairmont, W. Va., at 6.

On KDKA at 7:45, the third of the "Townsend Murder Mystery" network broadcasts is presented, and at 8, WCAE brings the weekly 30-minute "Our Family" sketch.

A letter-writing contest for children with prizes to be 50 tickets for the opera, "Hansel and Gretel," to be presented next Saturday at Syria Mosque, is being held for members of the Sun-Telegraph Family. The letters, to be received not later than 5 p. m. Wednesday, are to consist of not more than 100 words on why the contestants would like to see the opera and the benefits they would derive from attending. Communications should be addressed to Miss Jane A. White, WCAE.

Beginning Monday morning, a daily series of health talks by Dr. Royal S. Copeland, health authority whose articles are a daily feature of the Sun-Telegraph, will be offered during KDKA's 7-to-7:30 a. m. Musical Clock.

Shields' Political Review on WCAE

A concise review and analysis of recent local and national political developments by Mark Shields, political editor of the Sun-Telegraph, is scheduled on WCAE tonight at 6 o'clock.

Louis L. Kaufman, Globe-Trotter of the Sun-Telegraph and Hearst Metrotone News, flashes the latest bulletins over WCAE and WJAS at 9:05 a. m. and 12:15 p. m.; WJAS at 2:15 p. m., and WCAE at 6:30 p. m. today.

Globe-Trotting

With the Globe-Trotter of the Sun-Telegraph and Hearst Metrotone News

By LOUIS L. KAUFMAN

Hello, ladies and gentlemen:

The Globe Trotters are in the money all right today. Here it is Saturday and most everyone has a half dollar with an 'O' mint mark. Everyone but me and I haven't even a half.

Did I know that by mentioning old coins I would start a flood of mail with questions asking their value? Did I know that the 'O' mint mark wasn't a rarity? No, dear people, I didn't. I thought I was on the verge of a great discovery and found out that I was just on the verge.

The original story is true and I'm stuck with it. Those 'O' marks are awfully important on half dollars dated 1834 or 1836, I understand. But they seem prevalent on coins of later dates.

Continuing the analysis of the mail, we find that plenty of people are regularly having birthdays and anniversaries and we figure that after everyone gets announced the year will have elapsed and we can start all over again.

Will some kind-hearted soul give me an idea concerning the handling of birthday greetings and announcements like that? No matter how tiresome some listeners may find them, you can't get away from the fact that they do bring a ray of sunshine into the lives of many globe trotters and where little children are concerned it is inconceivable how much sheer delight and happiness are afforded by the mere mention of their names on the radio.

Then there is the card party, the church supper, the neighborhood club entertainment. This in a sense is news. It is a mighty important matter to those people who have expended their effort to make these community building institutions a success.

And you know it's a lot of fun when you think you are doing somebody a service."

H. C. Frick, Coke Dealer, Becomes a Partner of Ironmaster

FROM THE LIFE OF ANDREW CARNEGIE
by BURTON J. HENDRICK

Abridged for exclusive publication in the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, by special permission of Mrs. Andrew Carnegie

Carnegie was not discouraged by the failure of his newspaper syndicate. In 1885 he retired from journalism, but his original impulse was not abandoned. Only a few months afterward, the people of two continents were startled by the appearance of a book, "Triumphant Democracy," that carried out Mr. Gladstone's suggestion for a volume presenting the facts of American progress in attractive form. Its very exterior symbolized its author's deepest convictions on government.

It was a sizeable octavo of more than 500 pages, bound in flaming red. As decorations to the title, two golden pyramids stood on the cover—one solidly erect upon its base, labelled "Republic," the other poised most tremulously on its point, and inscribed "Monarchy." Such Carnegie believed to be the solid basis of American institutions and the topsy-turvy system that afflicted his native land.

The volume was indeed a fervent and rollicking exhibition of statistics; a mighty paean based upon the census of 1880—a kind of literary coaching party through American wheat fields, corn prairies, coal and iron mines, railways, manufacturing plants, not omitting aspects of more spiritual import, such as the American common school, the American college, the American home, even American art and literature. In part, the book represented an affectionate tribute laid at the feet of the American people.

"To the Beloved Republic,"—so reads the inscription—"under whose equal laws I am made the peer of any man, although denied political equality by my native land, I dedicate this book with an intensity of gratitude and admiration which the native born citizen can neither feel nor understand." The American people, however, were not primarily the quarry at which the writer aimed, his real goal being the British masses, who were now invited to survey this epic of progress made by a kindred race under the beneficent influence of democratic institutions. The work was a tract for the furtherance of the Radical uprising in Great Britain.

A Sensational Book

"Triumphant Democracy" made a tremendous sensation. Many editions were at once demanded in America, the sales reaching 17,000 copies in a few months; several high priced English editions were similarly absorbed, and a cheap shilling reprint, published for the British working classes, sold more than 40,000 copies. Translations rapidly appeared in French, German and other European languages.

Many years after "Triumphant Democracy," Carnegie was a guest at a luncheon in London—part of the ceremonies attendant on the opening of a library in Hackney. Near him sat the gentleman who is now King of Great Britain, then the Prince of Wales. At that time a Presidential election was pending in the United States, a subject to which the conversation eventually drifted. His royal highness was in one of his most amiable and chatty moods.

"Carnegie," he said, "that Presidential election is all foolishness. Why don't you adopt the monarchial system and go peacefully along with a king, as we do?"

Carnegie was on his mettle at once. "We are entirely satisfied with our Presidents," he told the Prince. "Many of your English kings, you will admit, have been rascals."

New Firm Formed

Far from being offended, the Prince laughed uproariously, and the whole table laughed with him. "Oh, yes, that's so, Carnegie," he answered, "but all that was a long time ago. We do better these days."

The episode illustrates how little the man's outspokenness on subjects supposed to be sacred in British eyes affected his standing or his friendships. With more than one royal person, as will appear, Carnegie established kindly relations, and many members of that proscribed class he greatly liked as human beings.

Again, in reviewing Carnegie's rapidly evolving life, it is necessary to turn backward and retrace the years, for during this varied period of coaching parties, newspaper syndicates, Radical campaigns and mingling with statesmen, writers and philosophers, the fires of Pittsburgh and Braddock were burning steadily and adding day by day to Carnegie's leadership in the American steel trade. The organization of "Carnegie Brothers & Co., Limited," in 1881, marked a triumphant stage in his worldly fortunes. This new firm was a comprehensive one, gathering in a single household the iron and steel works associated with the Carnegie name. The Edgar Thomson, the Union Iron Mills, and the Lucy Furnaces, now, as separate entities, ceased to exist, all their properties and assets passing into the hands of the new combination.

The reorganization signalized more than the triumph of the age of steel. It initiated a new era in Carnegie management. The original associates had been assembled from several fields; few of them knew anything about steel; they owed their selection to their high financial standing and personal resources. The experimental time was over; the business had become highly technical and competitive; the hour of specialized knowledge had arrived.

Important Recruit

The first important recruit, however, was not, strictly speaking, one of their own "boys," but the product of an industry closely allied. On a Sunday afternoon Carnegie, with a few friends, was strolling over the hills near his Cresson home.

"We must attach this young man Frick to our concern. He has great ability and great energy. Moreover, he has the coke—and we need it."

At this time, about 1881, "this young man Frick" was making considerable stir. Few knew him intimately; his reputation was that of a person reserved, unsociable, absorbed in his work; yet his progress for the preceding nine years had been part of the triumphant march of Pittsburgh steel.

Clay Frick, for he was generally known by that middle name which reflected his father's admiration for the famous Kentucky statesman, had recently reached his thirty-first year. Mental and bodily vigor afterward seemed so inevitably his conspicuous qualities that one can hardly imagine the period when Frick was something of a weakling. But a childhood spent in almost constant ill health and a youth given up to difficult toil had left debilitating traces. The coke salesman who occasionally came Carnegie's way bore little resemblance to the man who afterward figured so importantly in his career.

His father was John W. Frick, the lively but not overambitious descendant of German-Swiss immigrants; his mother was Elizabeth, the daughter of Abraham Overholt, regarded as one of the richest men of Western Pennsylvania. Frick spent his early days as choreboy on his father's farm; only in the winter months and only for a few winters was he sent to school. All this time the sensitive child was conscious that, on his mother's side, he belonged to what in his primitive neighborhood was described as "quality." How much this embarrassing contrast between his circumstances and his maternal origin explains his unobtrusive disposition is a problem the new psychology might solve.

Abraham Overholt

Abraham Overholt was an Elder in the Mennonite Church and the sternest upholder of the ancient law, but few men have understood, on even terms with him, the art of blending whisky. His distillery for several decades could not produce the Overholt variety in quantities plentiful enough to supply the clamor of his countrymen, and from this business came his fortune and social standing.

About 1872—the year Carnegie definitely committed himself to steel—the younger man abandoned the distillery, the firm of "Frick & Co." springing into existence, and from this time forward Frick grew daily stronger as the Messiah of coke. Then came the day of financial wrath that at first seemed to have ruined Carnegie but finally gave him a fortune. The panic of '73 and the resultant depression had the same consequence for Frick. The history of the two men has many points in common. Rival coke ovens fell into ruin and ultimately into Frick's hands. A few investors who had entrusted their savings to the now unpopular enthusiast assailed him with reproaches; Frick quietly purchased their interests—with notes; while farmers reduced to penury gladly accepted his written promises to pay in exchange for their own over-mortgaged acres. In the late seventies business revived; "Frick & Co." had nearly a thousand ovens coking coal, which Frick himself, turning salesman like Carnegie, successfully hawked among the blast furnaces of Pennsylvania. His prosperity now marched side by side with Carnegie's and for precisely the same reason.

Every steel mill in the region, especially Carnegie's needed coke in unlimited quantities, and the one man who possessed it in sufficient quantities was Frick. The grandson of Abraham Overholt had realized his ambition of surpassing his progenitor in wealth, for, by 1881, he controlled 80 per cent of the business in Connellsville coal.

A Carnegie Partner

In that year Henry Clay Frick married Miss Adelaide Childs, a daughter of an important Pittsburgh family. They visited New York on their honeymoon Carnegie, then living with his mother in the Windsor Hotel, sent the young couple an invitation to dinner, displaying his genius as host in entertaining fashion. Frick sat quietly, with an occasional smile of appreciation, while the older man dilated on his recent coaching trip. At the end Carnegie sprang a surprise. Rising and lifting his glass, he gave a toast for his newly married friends and announced that Mr. Frick and he were about to become partners.

The silence that followed was broken by Carnegie's mother.

"That's a verra good thing for Mr. Freek, Andra," she said, "but what do we get out of it?"

The answer to Margaret Carnegie's question was given in the next two years. What Carnegie and his friends obtained was, briefly, an overwhelming ownership of the Frick concern. The transaction marked the first great stage in Carnegie's program of bringing under one management all the raw materials and processes necessary in the manufacture of steel. On January 1, 1882, a new company came into existence—the H. C. Frick Coke Company," of which W. and G. M. Ferguson, partners whom Frick had enlisted in 1878, held 23,654 shares, H. C. Frick 11,846, and the Carnegie group 4,500. In the course of the next five years the Ferguson contingent gradually disappeared. That Carnegie purchased a large proportion of their holdings is apparent, for, in a letter written by Frick on August 13, 1883, he refers to Andrew Carnegie as "the largest stockholder in our company."

As SMOOTH as an Old Gold

SMOOTH! That's the word that flashes to your mind as you watch the silken performance of a champion.

SMOOTH! That's the thrill that comes to your taste as you inhale an OLD GOLD. No hot spots. No bitter taste. Just the winning flavor and throat-ease of queen-leaf Turkish and domestic tobacco. Nature-cured; free of all hot-burning artificial flavorings.

And they are FULL-WEIGHT.

STOCK MARKET PRICE TONE FIRMS UP

NEW YORK, Feb. 18.—(AP.)—The stock market became steadier in the early trading today, after an irregular opening.

American Telephone, Corn Products, Allied Chemical, Case and Southern Pacific continued fractionally lower, but a majority of leading shares were slightly higher. The so-called "wet stocks" were up substantial fractions to a point. Liquid Carbonic and Penick & Ford gained more than 1. General Motors, du Pont, New York Central, Union Pacific, Santa Fe, United States Steel and American Tobacco B were fractionally higher. Consolidated Gas and other utilities were steady.

In addition to the gains registered in the past week by steel, electric power and spring merchandising, reports from Detroit showed that automobile production was continuing according to previous schedule, despite the banking holiday. Moreover, advices from Michigan also indicated that general business was but moderately curtailed. The prompt measures taken to furnish ample currency for payroll and other needs had obviously served to lubricate the machinery of conducting business.

Additional reports that steel manufacturers now felt the time was ripe to arrest the recent declining tendency in steel prices, and new evidences that Congress was looking with increasing favor upon a broadening of the powers of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation so that it could more generously help public works programs, were favorably received in stock market quarters.

The dollar showed greater stability at the opening of the foreign exchange market. French francs gained 3/8 point to 3.94⅞ cents for cables. British sterling lost 1-16 cent to $3.44 3-16.

FEWER BANKS SUSPEND

NEW YORK, Feb. 18.—(AP.)—This week's bank failures dropped sharply to a total of 23, against 45 last week, due to the effectiveness of bank stabilization acts in some states and emergency moratorium measures in others, the American Banker reported.

The publication said:

"Michigan's moratorium was effective there in obtaining time for the reorganization of an extensive branch banking situation. Legislative acts have been passed in Wisconsin, Nebraska and Iowa, giving the state the right to freeze the deposits of a bank and thus permit it to continue business, instead of forcing it to close its doors and liquidate. In other states local or extensive banking and business holidays, without legislated basis, have been quickly devised and whole-heartedly adopted, affording a bank in difficulty the opportunity to catch its breath and strengthen its affairs."

WHEAT PRICES RULE STEADY

CHICAGO, Feb. 18.—Notable steadiness characterized grain prices early today. Advocates of the buying side of the wheat market continued in a majority, asserting that values would receive decided help from domestic crop reports before long. Opening at a shade decline to ⅛c advance, wheat later held near the initial range. Corn started unchanged to ¼c off, and subsequently altered little.

U.S. HAS ENOUGH MONEY, SAYS ECONOMIST

By LEWIS HANEY
Professor of Economics, New York University.

NEW YORK, Feb. 18.—The large rise in "money in circulation" last week is notable. Currency outstanding rose to a record high, the figure being over $5,850,000,000.

Money in circulation may increase for several reasons. For example, business activity may increase, and that would require the use of more money, this increasing circulation. This obviously is not the reason now.

Or people may "hoard" money so that a large amount is not available for use. Then the banks (or the government) put out more currency to replace hoarded money. "Money in circulation" includes both money which is being used and money which is being hoarded.

BANKS BIG FACTOR

Or banking difficulties may directly cause increased money in circulation. If deposits are withdrawn, there is less of a basis for using checks in place of currency and a large proportion of business is done with currency. Or the tendency of people to draw funds out of banks may make it necessary for the latter to keep more till money on hand than would be normal.

When a large number of banks fail, people in the section affected can't use checks as much as before, and thus require more currency.

Of course, hoarding and banking troubles are apt to go together, and both are unquestionally responsible for the recent increase in currency.

One thing should be plain, and that is that the nation as a whole does not need more money. Many individuals have no money, because they are earning no income. Some sections lack money, because their funds are tied up in failed banks. But the total quantity of money in the country is greater than ever.

WOULDN'T AID NEEDY

Unfortunately we cannot help those individuals or cities which lack money, merely by manufacturing more currency. There would be no way to give the money to the particular ones who have none, for if we merely increase the total supply of currency, little if any of it would go to the needy.

Moreover, such a wholesale manufacturing of money would further shake our confidence in the monetary system and increase the hoarding and banking difficulties.

You see, the increase in currency now going on is caused by things which are reducing the circulation of money and tieing up funds in suspended banks. Some say it is "lack of confidence," but back of that lie poor business conditions, frozen assets, and fear of inflation.

REAL REMEDIES

The real remedies will be found in business improvement, in liquidation of frozen assets, and in removal of fears concerning the soundness of our money.

Manufacturing more money will not make money circulate. It will merely drive more money into hoarding and foreign withdrawals. "More money" necessarily means worse money—money less well secured.

It is an economic law that bad money tends to drive good money out of actual circulation. So the more money we make, the more money we "need!" (That is one reason why inflation can never be "controlled.")

What we really need is to get the existing money to circulating and the bank deposits to turning over.

But these condition will come only when people begin to buy and sell goods more freely and demand deposits grow and are checked against—in short, when business picks up. You can't make money circuate by fiat.

The first step is to restore confidence in our money and credit, including parmanent credit.

Richardson Battery Patents Sustained

CINCINNATI, Feb. 18.—The United States Circuit Court of Appeals has handed down a decision upholding basic patent rights held by the Richardson Company in the manufacture of composition storage battery containers. The Richardson Company is awarded bond of $250,000, which was put up by the National Battery Company, appellant, who appealed the case from the United States District Court for the Southern District of Ohio.

FREED IN MAUG GANG HOLDUPS

Guarded carefully during his trial against any attempt to shoot his way to freedom, John Flaherty, 21, alleged member of the Maug mob, was acquitted today by a jury in Criminal Court on four charges of robbery. John Maug, leader of the robber gang, and others are serving long prison terms for robbery and murder.

Flaherty was the only witness in his own defense. He denied all the charges, and said a confession introduced by the state was wrung from him by third degree methods. He was tried for complicity in the Pittsburgh Motor Coach, West View street car, Firestone service station and Fisher Brothers poultry market holdups.

Spectators were barred from the court room at the request of Assistant District Attorney Earl R. Jackson, and yesterday Judge William H. McNaugher refused to permit Flaherty to speak to a brother after Jackson objected and said a plot had been hatched while John Maug was in jail whereby the prisoners were to obtain revolvers and shoot their way to freedom.

OBITUARY

Dodds Funeral.

Funeral services for Mrs. Ida Dodds, who died Wednesday at the home of her daughter, Mrs. H. L. Brown, Schenectady, N. Y., were to be held this afternoon at the Aeberli funeral home, East North avenue and Sandusky street, North Side. She lived on Washington avenue, Bellevue. She was born on the North Side and had lived in the Pittsburgh district all her life. She was a member of the First Christian Science Church, of Bellevue. Besides her daughter she leaves her husband, James A. Dodds, and a brother, Oscar L. Reiter, of Pittsburgh.

William Forsythe.

William Forsythe, 97, died yesterday at his home on the Camden-Lebanon road, Mifflin Township, the house in which he was born. He leaves a son, Joseph Forsythe, of Mifflin Township, and four daughters, Mrs. Zeruah Silverfriend, Chicago; Mrs. Cora Bradford, Pittsburgh; Mrs. Jessie Reed, McKeesport, and Miss Sarah E. Forsythe, at home. Funeral services will be held Monday afternoon in the Lebanon Presbyterian Church.

Williams Funeral.

Funeral services were held today for Miss Grace S. Williams, a lifelong resident of Pittsburgh, and for 60 years a member of the Third Presbyterian Church, who died yesterday at the home of her niece, Mrs. John J. Horrocks, 249 Whipple street, Swissvale. Miss Williams was a daughter of Judge and Mrs. Henry W. Williams. She is survived by six nieces and four nephews. Services were to be held at the Horrocks home at 4:30 p. m., with interment in Allegheny Cemetery.

Richardson Funeral.

Funeral services for Charles M. Richardson, 41, of 375 Washington street, Oakmont, who died Thursday, will be held at his home tomorrow at 3 p. m. He was a member of the Emory Methodist Episcopal Church, Fort Pitt Lodge No. 634, F. & A. M. and the Duquesne Council, Order of Independent Americans. He leaves his widow; a daughter, Miss Mary Mabel Richardson, and his mother, Mrs. John B. Richardson. Interment will be in the Homewood Cemetery Monday morning.

Mrs. Ralph E. Brush.

Mrs. Ralph E. Brush, formerly of Pittsburgh, died yesterday at her home in Greenwich, Conn., according to word received here. She was a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John A. Harper, of Pittsburgh, and married 18 years ago.

Walter Winchell ON BROADWAY

Ouch, My Wrist!

We have it on the word of the Wilkes-Barre (Pa.) Record that the Rev. Robert MacGowan, of Pittsburgh, is swiping Cardinal O'Connell's stuff. Cardinal O'Connell it was who scolded Rudy Vallee and others when he preached against crooners on the radio. That was several months ago. The Crosley Report—which is the best barometer the advertisers have to learn which radio programs are being heard and which aren't—lists Master Vallee "away up front"—or, as we say "in the money."

"In ridiculing the crooners and columnists," says the Wilkes-Barre Record, "Reverend MacGowan asserted that each generation has some person to dictate to them and tell them what to do. 'Today,' he said, 'we have Walter Winchell to tell us what to do!'"

Well! Why not?

THE MORNING MAIL

"Mr. Winchell: Hope you're not taking this or that abuse too seriously. Seems to me that you are always looking for a fight—because I've been reading you for years and I can't recall when you weren't fighting someone or fighting back. At any rate, I don't suppose your publishers take any of the criticism against you too seriously—which is all that matters.

"However, I'm tempted to offer a few observations. And the fact that the writer is a newspaperman of 20 years' standing—and a total stranger to you personally—is highly incidental. It seems to me, in the first place, that one of your recent heckler's arguments is fallacious. He says you are this or you're that. That you are 'unethical,' that you violate traditions—and he insinuates that you are 'on the take.'

"Now then, he should know, if he knows anything at all about the newspaper business, that these charges are absurd, for the simplest reason—that if they were true in the remotest degree (particularly the latter charge) you couldn't possibly stay in the newspaper business. You'd just naturally collapse, and every day that your column continues to appear is further refutation, per se, of this complaint.

"By what right or authority, for instance, does that magazine editor you've been teasing arrogate to himself the right to decide what the public shall read? Is it not a fair test to point out to him that the large following of readers a writer has—is proof enough that that writer's material is all right? The further fact that you have countless echoes and imitators or 'similar stylists' as they prefer to call themselves, who developed in the past few years, is additional proof that there is a legitimate field for your class of work.

"My family has been in the newspaper business for over 50 years. Father and three sons in it. I've been on all the 'big' papers and it is my opinion that the freshest and the most fascinating feature it has developed in all these years. The very best of luck to you. Truly yours, Jack D. Webb, 221 Sherman avenue."

My gratitude, Mr. Webb. I've only been in Miami one day visiting the Duchess and our baby—and your nice letter gave me more time with my darlings. Gracia, dank-a-shane and thanks! When this appears in the paper—you will get an anonymous letter scolding you for liking me. It'll be 'from a guy I've just trapped, only he doesn't know it yet. Drop in and I'll tell you—the name will shock you.

THE PLOT THICKENS

Among other things that come to a feller's desk in a day are anonymous letters and postcards. For a few years now—no mail has been complete without a "stinging rebuke" (anonymously, of course)... Some of them are couched in slimy wordage and the senders probably feel relieved. These are swept from the desk on to the floor without even receiving the courtesy of the wastebasket burial... But one anonymous writer's passion has been satisfied, it seems by forwarding anonymous cards and letters to essayists, columnists, magazine and newspaper editors—all of whom have given us favorable remarks. "I used to think you had sense," is the usual first line, "but when you indorse that rat, Winchell, who isn't original, I'm through reading you!" ... The recipients of these anonymous-sent missives have invariably passed them along to us and we filed them away—waiting for that inevitable "break."

That "break" came the other day—and now we know the identity or the ambusher, the sniper of the hit-and-runner. Complain to the postoffice authorities? ... And then what?

A well-aimed sock on his nose would give us more satisfaction.

But official proof is best to make him ashamed of himself before the audience (who will be so amazed, they won't easily associate "anonymous letters" with him), so famous is he ... At any rate—just to tease him a bit more—before he is stricken with remorse—let it be known by him, anyhow, that we have finally caught up with him ... He signed most of his cream-colored letters "Ina Fowler" (a new way of spelling "fouler") and printed his stuff in ink, forgetting that several years ago, he sent us letters so styled. They match perfectly now ... The irony of it all is that in his own columns—he incessantly writes that "nothing is worse than an anonymous letter sender! ... Oh, well, he who laughs last—laughs loud.

SUNDAY SHOWS TO AID COX

Father Cox activities for relief of destitute unemployed are financed entirely by voluntary contributions. Father Cox gets no assistance from local or State contributions. The public, however, seems to listen to his appeals because his work goes on day in and day out.

Father Cox welcomes the co-operation of friends who give card parties or other entertainment for the benefit of his needy. Father Cox prefers that those who contemplate benefits of this character notify him in advance. In fact, he does not want his name used for this purpose without his authority.

One downtown and several neighborhood theaters are preparing Sunday benefit food shows for him. Theater managers who would like to co-operate in this way are invited to notify Father Cox so full publicity may be arranged.

The past week has been particularly successful in the Father Cox-Sun-Telegraph drive for subscriptions and the "Father of the Jobless" will be given another liberal check on this account today. Every subscription that comes in on the blank of this page gives Father Cox a cash commission for his unemployment relief fund.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., Feb. 18.

To the Editor Sun-Telegraph:

The U. S. Senate is holding some kind of investigation down in Louisiana. From what we can gather from the evidence, the investigation is held to determine who is the biggest liar in Louisiana, and with the amount of competitors, they are having a tough time finding out. The repeal of prohibition was passed by the people last November. It finally reached the Senate Thursday. News travels fast in this country.

She Saw A Saw

George Arliss Is Star In Stanley

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

George Arliss, in "The King's Vacation," does a virtual monologue in the Stanley, and, of course, it has the accustomed delightful Arliss flavor. As an added feature there are pictures of the Carnera-Schaaf fight, all of it, including a clear view of the unfortunate blow that sent Schaaf down for the everlasting count.

In the Arliss picture Dick Powell, once a member of the Stanley entertainment staff, has the juvenile lead, and, with the aid of Patricia Ellis, gives "The King's Vacation" its very slight trace of youthful romance. But there are three love affairs in the picture and Arliss is honorably mixed up in all of them, his own, and chief one, being of the beautiful sentimental kind that everybody can stand up and cheer about.

The old mythical kingdom is invaded again for this picture, which, as intimated at the outset, is pretty much all Arliss. He is in every scene, the other players seemingly being there only to make a setting for the star. The story isn't robust, but it suffices for its purpose, that of showing the human side of a kingdom's ruler.

Because politics make him do things his good sense tells him are not for the best interest of his people, he abdicates, whereupon the story does quite a little straining for effect in making him try to revive his youthful days that included a marriage that had to be broken up when he went to the throne. And the queen? Ah, that would be telling.

Mrs. Arliss plays the part of the royal consort nicely. Marjorie Gateson is the soul of animation as the lady who had interested Mr. Arliss as a prince who never expected to wear the state crown. Miss Ellis, very pretty, is their daughter.

Gets One

Carole Lombard gets her man in "No Man of Her Own," photoplay feature in Sheridan Square.

Beer in Penn Has Foam Of Fun

By GEORGE SEIBEL

Prohibition has always been good for a laugh in pictures and musical shows, and now it provides a gale of farewell guffaws in the new Buster Keaton and Jimmy Durante comic, "What, No Beer?" at the Penn. Durante is a barber and Keaton a taxidermist. Durante gets the great idea of being the first one to sell good beer after Repeal, and Keaton furnishes the money. He has ten thousand dollars, which he has hidden in his stuffed animals—$500 in an armadillo, $300 in a goat, $1,000 in a pelican, $500 in a skunk.

Mr. Seibel

They buy a brewery and enter it in the dark, because they intend to brew dark beer. They find a stuttering brewmaster named Schultz—alias Roscoe Ates—and they brew beer. The Atlantic Ocean is a poor second as to foam in that brewery. The more foam, the more fun!

Between the dry squad, who raid the brewery and find it is near beer, and some racketeers, who muscle in and make them produce good beer, Buster and Jimmy have a tough time, especially as Buster is in love with Phyllis Barry, who plays the one gangster's girl. It all culminates in a last raid by the prohibition squad, when Buster escapes by being rolled out in a barrel and rides about town with a sign inviting all the citizens to "free beer at the brewery." The citizens mob the place and mop up all the beer before the raiders arrive—so there is no evidence! Then Repeal is a reality and the partners are the happy and glorious possessors of a Beer Garden.

Boisterous fun-making and loud lunacy make "What, No Beer?" a revel of foamy fun. For the serious-minded part of the audience there is a film debate on "Technocracy," which is carefully labeled "both pro and con." A rather tepid colored film, "Wild People," is relieved by a very fine travel picture showing life in Moscow.

Miami Shots On Screen

THE GLOBE TROTTER

The attempted assassination of President-elect Franklin D. Roosevelt at Miami, Fla., is dramatically pictured in the current issue of Hearst Metrotone News. The Hearst newsreel cameraman was within a few feet of him as he delivered his address, at the conclusion of which Giuseppe Zangara, the Hackensack (N. J.) bricklayer, opened fire upon Mr. Roosevelt, seriously wounding Mayor Cermak, of Chicago, and four others. The pictures show the President-elect talking to Mayor Cermak and the wild excitement of the frenzied crowd that tried to take possession of the crazed would-be slayer following the shooting. There are also many scenes preceding and following the actual shooting.

Sir Malcolm Campbell, king of speed, makes a trial run at Daytona Beach, Fla., in his rebuilt Bluebird, making an average speed of 212 miles an hour, but hitting a maximum of 240 miles.

The worst traffic tieup Europe has ever known in shown in Vienna where thousands of taxis were abandoned because of a strike. The cabs, scattered all over the streets, prevent other vehicles from getting through.

'House of Refuge' Title Is Out

"Bondage" is the new title announced for the Fox production heretofore known as "House of Refuge." This story of a so-called girl's penal institution, is by Grace Sothcote Leake and will have Dorothy Jordan in the leading role. The supporting cast includes Alexander Kirkland, Nydia Westman, Merle Tottenham and Jane Darwell. Alfred Santell will direct.

Local Story In Davis

By MARY SHINE

"No Other Woman" and "Dangerously Yours" are the features this week in the Davis, where they began yesterday. "No Other Woman" is the moving narrative of a Pittsburgh steel mill worker, Charles Bickford, contented with his work and his life, and of his wife, Irene Dunne, who longs for the day they can make enough money to get away from their sordid surroundings. The dream comes true when Bickford makes millions through the discovery of a new dye.

With the wealth, comes unhappiness, in the person of Gwili Andre, looking more anemic than ever, as a gold digger with whom Bickford becomes infatuated. Wanting to marry her, he asks his wife to divorce him but she says she will give him up to no other woman.

He bribes witnesses to lie about Irene, and how she got his love back after that, and the scene in court are exciting enough for you to go and see.

"Dangerously Yours" is a delightful bit of frippery, about a gentleman thief, his beautiful adversary and how they fall in love at daggers' points.

The thief kidnaps the charming but furious sleuth who threatens to expose his theft of some diamonds, and sails away with her on his yacht. She escapes to the police, only to be accused of taking the diamonds. To jail she goes, and it is up to the thief to prove her innocence without incriminating himself. Warner Baxter, always the finished actor, is the twentieth century highwayman; Herbert Mundin, his valet-accomplice, and Miriam Jordan, the blonde detective.

Broadways Of the World — All in a Day

By Mark Hellinger

HOTEL TOKATLIAN, ISTANBUL, Turkey.—Well, here's a pretty kettle of fish cakes. After a train trip that almost knocked me for a loop, I now learn that I will be able to remain here in Constantinople exactly one day and a half! I must catch a boat in the early morning the day after tomorrow. Otherwise—but listen:

My train made excellent time, arriving here this morning but three hours behind its schedule. At the station, before being permitted to enter the city, I presented my credentials—plus a diplomatic letter from the Turkish embassy in Vienna.

The officer-in-charge read the letter very carefully, arose from his chair and saluted me most nobly. I smiled to myself. Hellinger at last was getting the courtesy to which he was entitled. And two minutes later, the officer confiscated my camera and all my films!

"You're camera is too large,' he smiled. "You will not be permitted to bring him into Turkey. Thank you very much, sir."

"But my letter," I cried. "How about that? Doesn't it say that I am to be given every consideration?"

The smile never left his face. "Ah, the letter," he returned. "It is very nice, sir. Very nice, indeed. You are to be congratulated. But the camera is too big, sir. And that is all."

And that was all.

I dislike trusting first impressions, but on the long drive from the station to the hotel I was disappointed in this city. As a city of dreams, it strikes me that Constantinople is more of a nightmare. Far from being beautiful, the town is positively ugly. And the faces are the most unfriendly I've encountered on the entire trip.

And now to get back to the reason why I can spend no more than a day and a half in Istanbul. Having learned a definite lesson on past occasions, I marched myself over to the Cook office and unburdened myself to a young gentleman whose desk was covered with papers and whose face was covered with pimples.

"My plans," I asserted after we had exchanged cigarettes, "take me next to Jerusalem by train—and then to Cairo by the same method of transportation. From Cairo I'm going over to Port Said and catching a boat for India from there. But you're not interested in the last part. What I want from you are the best train accomodations from here to Jerusalem."

"It takes three days by train from here to Jerusalem," he said, "and the train goes but twice a week."

"I know all that," I replied. "Just answer my questions and permit me to do all the worrying. When do I leave—and how much?"

He drew forth a huge bundle of papers. With a large pencil he made many mysterious marks.

"There is a railway convention in Cairo, sir," he said, "and we are well booked in advance. I can take very good care of you, however, on the train that leaves here two weeks from next Wednesday."

Seventeen days in Istanbul! If he had told me that I'd have to sit through 10 Jed Harris productions it couldn't have been any worse. I clutched at the desk for support.

"Where," I muttered, "where can I go by boat? Or by airplane? Or by magic? Or by golly? Where is the next service to some place?"

I was in sad shape.

"How long," I gasped, "how long from here to Alexandria on the Turkish Mail Line the day after tomorrow?"

"Scarcely worth speaking of, sir," he returned. "Only four days."

When I returned to the hotel I learned that my camera had not yet been released. I summoned a guide and asked him for the name of the head man of the town. He said that the gentleman in question was the governor of the city.

"Okay," I cried. "Get him on the phone and arrange an appointment for me. I'll tell that bozo a thing or two.

"Very good," replied the guide. "And what day next week shall I make the appointment for?"

What I told the guide at that point need not be stated here. Sufficient to relate that, within an hour, I was sitting with the governor of Istanbul in his private office. He's deaf and he can't speak English at all. But aside from those little facts, we got along famously.

With my guide acting as my interpreter and shouter, I grew very dramatic. I demanded the release of my camera immediately. And if I exaggerated a trifle, who will blame me? I drew pictures of the Army, the Navy and the United States Marines all coming to the rescue of my one little camera. Each sentence was duly shouted into the Governor's ear, but he did not seem particularly impressed. The guide spoke.

"The Governor feels badly about this," he said, "and he will probably order your camera released. He has many things to think about, but he will do his best."

I played my trump card. Striking my attitude, which is not as dangerous as striking a woman, I let loose.

"Ask him this:" I cried. "Does he want me to write back to America and tell my people how inhospitable the Turks are? Does he want me to tell the real story of how I have been mistreated in Constantinople. Does he?"

The guide repeated my words. The Governor spoke. The guide translated.

"His excellency replies," he murmured, "that if you feel that way, why not?"

BLUFF CHAMPIONS CLASS OF DISTRICT

HATS OFF TO the basketball stars of Duquesne University and Coach Chick Davies! For the second time in succession they have won the intercollegiate championship of the city, and in scaling the title heights twice in two years since they were admitted to major competition locally they have written a red-ink chapter into the history of the college floor sport in this region and established themselves beyond question as the class of the district.

Chick Davies

The fact that the title-clinching victory over Pitt last night, like the first over the Panthers, was scored by only one point, 25 to 24, makes the triumph of the Dukes all the more convincing. It takes spirit and fighting hearts as well as playing ability to win the close ones. In the first clash with Pitt, the Bluff basketeers won out by holding an early lead. Last night they won out by coming from behind. So they proved themselves both ways. In two years they have beaten Pitt three times in a row and Carnegie Tech twice in three meetings, indisputable evidence of supremacy. And they have won 10 straight. If they had a chance to compete with some of the major outside teams their honors probably would not be confined to their own section.

THE DEPARTURE OF the Pirate advance guard for Paso Robles at 9:55 o'clock tomorrow morning comes oddly among a group of anniversaries giving a sentimental setting to this initial step in the fight for the National League pennant.

For one thing, the present progressive regime is exactly a year old today, as it was on this date in 1932 that the club was reorganized following the death of Barney Dreyfuss on February 5, W. E. Benswanger being elected president and S. E. Watters vice president and secretary.

NEXT WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 22, the day on which the first Buccaneer squad will reach Paso Robles to pitch camp until March 9, will be the second anniversary of the death of Samuel W. Dreyfuss, who was vice president and treasurer, and also the birthday of President Benswanger, who will be 41, the youngest club head in the majors, but already one of the ablest.

The following day, February 23, when practice is to start, will be the sixty-eighth anniversary of the birth of the late Barney Dreyfuss, and one day later, February 24, Coach Honus Wagner and Catcher Earl Grace will celebrate their forty-ninth and twenty-sixth birthday anniversaries, respectively.

CY PERKINS, battery coach of the Yankees, doesn't go as far as Charley Berry and a few other American Leaguers in pronouncing Vernon Gomez the equal of Bob Grove. He says Gomez is not yet Grove. But he does express the opinion that the Yankee youngster has the possibilities to be every bit as great a southpaw in time as the veteran star of the A's. According to Perkins, Gomez has come along more rapidly in two years than Grove did in any two years of his much longer career. Cy says that Gomez is already one of the great left-handers of the game, and that it is entirely in his own hands whether he proves to be the greatest of all. Vernon's greatness is held to be due as much to his fearlessness and unconcern as to his blinding fast ball and his famous overhand curve.

Vernon Gomez

"ONE OF THE biggest assets of Gomez," Perkins says, "is that he pitches with as much unconcern against a pennant contender as he does against a cellar outfit. Young pitchers usually make the mistake of trying to put too much on the ball when facing a dangerous foe.

"Gomez is relaxed 24 hours a day. He doesn't know what excitement is when he goes in to pitch. He is as unconcerned as a gent trying to beat his favorite game of solitaire. In the box he is the picture of ease. He is always natural. And he's afraid of nobody."

F. J. MARMION, appointed Pittsburgh district manager of sales for the American Steel and Wire Company, was one of the members of the original New York Celtics, basketball's most famous team.

Marmion attended the first game played here this season by the Rosenbloom Celtics to greet Pete Barry, another of the originals. The noted New York team was organized for the season of 1912-13. The other players were McArdle, Nitty, Calhoun, Morrissey and Hart.

---

AS TEAMS WERE then classified in the floor sport, the Celtics won the amateur lightweight title in their first season, the middleweight in the second, and the heavyweight in the third. Trouble with the A. A. U. then developed and they turned professional. Johnny Beckman and Dutch Dehnert were added next, then the late Ernie Reach and Chris Leonard joined, and Nat Holman came in shortly afterward. The Celtics attribute their success to Reach, as it was he who conceived the defensive side now so essential.

MANY FOOTBALL FANS never could see any sense in the stepout play, which is now abolished by the new 10-yard zone along the sideline. They asked why coaches did not avoid this wasting of a down by devising a play that would take the ball in the opposite direction, that is toward the center of the field

The explanation always given by the mentors was that such a play almost invariably would have meant a loss. They were playing percentage, figuring that it would be better to get the ball out of bounds without losing any ground, even though a down were wasted, than to try to carry the leather toward the center of the field and lose possibly anywhere from five to 10 yards in the attempt.

EVERY OFFENSIVE PLAY, it is explained, is so designed that each defensive player on the line of scrimmage is to be blocked by one or more offensive players. When the ball was brought close to the sideline, this blocking could not be carried out.

For then the defensive team could afford to fortify itself with one or two extra players on the strong side of the line of scrimmage, making it practically impossible to run a play in that direction without losing ground. Hence, quarterbacks were instructed to take the ball out of bounds. The new rule will eliminate this. The short side of the field will have to be protected, because always there will be room to run a strong play toward the sideline.

Glenn Cunningham

IT MAY BE expecting a little too much to look for history to repeat where such a rare happening as the breaking of the world one-mile running record is concerned. But track experts are anticipating at least something close to a repeater tonight at the big annual New York A. C. games in Madison Square Garden. It was in the Baxter Mile last year that Gene Venzke set a new world indoor record of 4 minutes and 10 seconds. The Baxter Mile will be run again tonight as the feature event of the meet. Two weeks ago, in the Wanamaker Mile on the same track, Glenn Cunningham defeated Venzke in 4:13, one of the fastest six indoor miles ever run. Both of those stars will be in there again, in better condition and faster than they were a fortnight back. With Cunningham striving to repeat, Venzke trying to turn the tables, and both pressed by such high-grade opposition as Leo Lermond, Carl Coan, Eric Ny and Frank Crowley, there is a race in prospect in which the time may at least closely approach new world figures.

BATTERYMEN AND OFFICIALS FORM SQUAD

By CHARLES J. DOYLE

The Pirate vanguard, made up of a few batterymen, Manager George Gibson, President William E. Benswanger and others will leave Pittsburgh tomorrow morning at 9:55 o'clock bound for the club's training quarters at Paso Robles, Cal.

William Benswanger

The real rookie of the first squad, it develops, is none other than he who actually sits in the drivers seat. Bill Benswanger, ready to make his initial bow at a Spring camp, is broken out in a baseball rash that makes him akin to a kid with measles.

Bill's departure, by the way, will make it a bit lonesome for the barbers and bakers and candlestick makers of Oakland, for they will have to hunt elsewhere for one who listens so attentively when they hand out "inside stuff" on how the club should be run. Benswanger believes in getting the other fellow's viewpoint, but he apparently does not believe in the singular number.

Honus Wagner, too, will be a part of the early section of Buccaneers. The "Flying Dutchman" also is all worked up over his new adventure; it should be a novel experience to Honus inasmuch as he has not made such a trip in 15 years.

The return of Wagner, it seems, has been heralded throughout the United States. Echoes from this direct shot on the part of Benswanger and his aides are being heard daily at the home office of the team. The latest report came from the office of Judge Landis, commissioner of the game. A letter from Leslie M. O'Connor, Landis's secretary-treasurer, declared that everybody in an out of baseball was much pleased over the return of Wagner to the Pirates.

ALL GIANTS IN

NEW YORK, Feb. 18.—(AP.)—The New York Giants have hung up a new record for themselves by announcing every player on the roster signed and satisfied, two full days before the first contingent leaves here for the training camp at Los Angeles. The last holdout, Outfielder Len Koenecke, of Adams, Wis., came to terms yesterday.

Simultaneously the club released three players on option, including Gilbert English, third baseman, to the Buffalo Internationals, and Infielders John Laborne and Joe Malay to the Scranton club of the New York-Pennsylvania League.

RED SOX STRONGER

ST. LOUIS, Feb. 18.—(AP.)—Marty McManus, manager of the Boston Red Sox, believes his team has been strengthened 40 per cent by the addition of new players to the club's 1933 roster.

McManus, whose home is in St. Louis, said his pitching staff would be better and younger than last year. He added that his coaching has been fortified, that the combination play he plans for the outfield will add more hitting power and that his infield may also produce more of a batting punch than last year.

CORBETT FAILS TO IMPROVE

NEW YORK, Feb. 18.—(AP.)—James J. Corbett, who is critically ill of a heart ailment, passed a quiet day at h[illegible] home in Bay[illegible] Long Island, yesterday and his condition showed no visible change today.

John Kelleher, old friend and companion of the former heavyweight champion, said that Corbett had not attempted to repeat Thursday's feat of leaving his bed and walking across the room, but that he appeared no worse than the day before. He still keeps up his courage and spirit although the doctor has said that death is inevitable because of the condition of his heart.

EXPLANATIONS OF RIPLEY'S CARTOONS OF YESTERDAY—A FORBIDDEN KINGDOM IN AMERICA—Kenedy County, with an area of 900,000 acres, lies 250 miles south of Houston, Tex. Ninety percent of the county is owned by five families of cattle barons, the Kenedys, the Klebergs, the Armstrongs, the Yturrias and the Garcias, who, with their employes, constitute the total population of the county, numbering 701. The county lies squarely in the middle of the shortest highway between Houston and Corpus Christi and Brownsville and the Lower Rio Grande Valley, but the concrete State Road ends at a barbed wire fence on the county line. The irate neighbors who are forced to detour considerably compare this fence to the Great Wall of China. The question of highway construction through the Walled County has played a prominent part in Texas politics. The opposition of the County is predicated upon fear, lest a highway destroy their earthly, if rather primitive, paradise. A CHURCH BUILT IN A DAY—The First Christian Baptist Church, of Belleville, Ill., was constructed within a single day, on November 16, 1929. It is a frame tabernacle 90x50 feet in dimension, with a seating capacity of 300. Upward of 100 men constructed this church within a day, and it was dedicated on the morrow.

SOCCER CARD LIGHT TODAY

By TOM BIRKS

Two exhibition soccer games are scheduled for this afternoon at Mt. Lebanon, a team representing Duquesne University will clash with Joe Luxbacker's Firemen, and at Leslie Park, the Lawrenceville team, champions of the Central League, will play a team of all-stars from the league. Both games are called for 2:45 o'clock.

Today will mark the first time that a local college squad has met a league team locally. Zaninelli, the Duquesne University football star, and a former Gallatin soccer player, has been coaching the Dukes for the fray.

Tomorrow all roads will lead to Greenlee Field where Curry and the Cleveland Slavias are to clash in the second round of the National open competition.

This game stands out as the most colorful to be staged here in many moons. The Slavias went into the final two seasons ago, and practically the same club will represent the team on the field tomorrow. The kick-off is scheduled for 2:30 sharp. Pat O'Conner will have charge of the game.

Jimmy Reilly Wins; Oger Beats Rudy

FAIRMONT, W. Va., Feb. 18.—(AP.)—Jimmy Reilly, Fairmont, 138, was awarded the referee's decision over Tony Vecchio, Morgantown, 139, in a main go of eight rounds on a National Guard boxing program here last night.

DERBY DRAWS 118 ENTRIES

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Feb. 18.—All of the leading American 3-year-olds were nominated for the $50,000 added Kentucky Derby, it was announced today by Col. M. J. Winn, president of the American Turf Association and executive director of Churchill Downs. One hundred and eighteen were named, three more than entered last year. The fifty-ninth running of this event will take place at Churchill Downs on Saturday, May 6.

Willis Sharpe Kilmer, who won the Derby in 1918 with Exterminator, led the nominators in the number entered with seven. E. R. Bradley, who triumphed last year with Burgoo King, and captured first and second money in 1921 with Behave Yourself and Black Servant and duplicated this feat in 1926 with Bubbling Over and Bagenbaggage, named six for this year's race.

William Woodward, whose Gallant Fox was victorious in 1930, nominated four, as did Mrs. Payne Whitney, who won in 1931 with Twenty Grand, and W. R. Coe, whose Ladysman rules as winter favorite for the forthcoming event.

The C. V. Whitney stable, which won the Derby in 1915 with Regret and in 1927 with Whiskery for the late Harry Payne Whitney, also named four. The entries:

Tribe May Desert Stadium For Early Games

CLEVELAND, Feb. 18.—(AP.)—The Cleveland Indians may have to desert the Municipal Stadium and return to their old stand at League Park for the start of the 1933 baseball season.

After an inspection of the Stadium diamond, General Manager Billy Evans, of the Tribe, said he would order tickets for the old park printed for the first two weeks.

The Stadium field was riddled by last fall's football games and the surface had to be plowed up for installation of a new drainage system a few weeks ago.

SCHAAF LAID TO REST

WRENTHAM, Mass., Feb. 18.—(AP.)—All of the honors in the power of a community here paid to Ernie Schaaf yesterday when the inhabitants of this, his town, joined hundreds of notable outsiders at his funeral. A cortege of automobiles, two miles long, escorted the body of the boxer from the Schaaf home to a country church and thence to the cemetery.

Legionnaires stood at attention as the flag-draped hearse drew up to St. Mary's Church. Two flag bearers, members of the Navy firing squad and a detail of the town's firemen preceded the gray casket, followed into the edifice by the boxer's parents, his brothers and sisters, Jack Sharkey, heavyweight champion, and the others in the funeral procession.

Johnny Buckley, who managed Schaaf with Sharkey, was one of the eight pallbearers.

The floral contents of five automobiles were placed on the grave. Tributes from Sharkey, Primo Carnera, Max Schmeling and many others of the boxing world were among them.

Carnera was not present at the services, but he was represented by Father Delerole, of Providence, who sat inside the altar rail with several other priests of the Catholic Church.

The boys are to resume Intercollegiate Conference basketball competition here tonight. Carnegie Tech and Georgetown are booked for a battle in the Tartan gym, provided the Washington squad make it to town. They were scheduled to meet West Virginia in Morgantown last night, but failed to arrive in the West Virginia city in time, so the game was cancelled.

The bus in which the Hoyas are making the tour broke down at Winchester, Va., and so much time was required to make repairs that they did not arrive in Morgantown until 11:15 p. m. According to word received by Tech officials today, the bus now is in good running condition, and the boys will head for Pittsburgh early enough to allow for a breakdown or two.

Carnegie needs to take this one tonight, first, so they may grab a tighter hold on second place in the Conference, and second, because the Skibo record can stand the addition of a victory or two. Georgetown and Pitt inaugurated Conference competition here to pry open the local intercollegiate season, and the Panthers won with points to spare.

HOYAS IMPROVED

Since that time, however, Georgetown has shown a vast improvement in form and figures to give the Plaid all the action it may desire tonight.

The Carnegie lineup may be shifted somewhat, Bob Smith, co-captain and star forward, bobbed up Thursday with a broken blood vessel in one of his footsies, and may not be able to go tonight. If he must ride the bench, then young Art Carlson will take his place. George Silverman, the caste off his bum shoulder, may get the call to start in Ted Rigg's position at guard at the last minute.

Panthers Bow

In a game the exact replica, as far as the score and windup was concerned, of the first meeting this year, Duquesne's Dukes defeated Pitt last night in the Pitt Stadium Pavilion, 25 to 24. The greatest crowd that ever fought its way into the crowded confines of the Panther lair witnessed the struggle.

A field goal by Paul Birch, Duke's sophomore forward, with less than a minute left to play, brought the Dukes the verdict. The game was a thriller in point of action, though like most college tussles hereabouts this winter, it was over-officiated.

The victory marged the Duke's tenth in a row, 11 out of 12 for the season and three out of three in two years over Pitt. It gave them the city title for the second consecutive campaign and a death-grip in the district crown for the season.

The Panthers looked like they were going to secure revenge over the Dukes in no uncertain fashion for the first setback this year and the one last season as they hopped off to a commanding lead. At one time during the first half, they were ahead by 16 to 6. As it was, they held an 18-to-12 advantage at the intermission.

CRIBBS BRILLIANT

Claire Cribbs, brilliant center, led the Panther attack during the first 20 minutes of action with two field goals and two fouls. The Golden Cats also were aces at the foul line, dropping in eight out of eight.

Slowly but surely the scrappy Dukes sliced away at the Pitt advantage as the second half got under way until finally, with Jim MacDougall out of the game on personal fouls and Art Feldman in, the latter popped one from the side to make it 21 to 20 in Duquesne's favor. He added a second a moment later to boost the Red and Blue advantage, but two long ones by Slim Wainio, who almost beat the Dukes single-handedly in the first game, put Pitt ahead with less than two minutes to play at 24 to 23.

Marty Reiter, who had three personal fouls on him during the first 10 minutes of play, but who escaped having the officials' whistles toot in his direction for the remaining 30, missed a chance to tie the score at 24-all when he failed to make good on a free throw, but Birch sank one from the side with about 50 seconds to go and the Buffites went ahead.

Wainio had two shots from difficult angles and distances to pull the game out of the fire before the contest ended but missed both, though they were close enough to cause Coach Chick Davies nearly to expire from heartf ailure.

MACKEY PUNCHED

By JULIUS LEVIN

South High School, for the first time since 1918, is "in" as a sectional champion in the City League, being undisputed ruler of Section I, while Perry, in Section II, appears to have the best chance of getting into the championship playoff series with the South passers.

South clinched the Section I title yesterday by defeating Schenley, 31 to 29, in a nip and tuck battle. Schenley gave the Washabaugh-coached quintet a stiff battle, but a belated rally fell short by two points of tying the score.

In other Section I games, Westinghouse took Fifth Avenue, 35 to 29, and Taylor Allderdice defeated Peabody, 31 to 27. Connelley lost to Meadville in a non-league fray.

PERRY WINS

Perry, defeated on Tuesday by South Hills, 40 to 12, staged a fine comeback to down Allegheny and all but cinch the banner in Section II. The score was 25 to 21. Bob Kornick, after being stopped during the first two periods, broke loose for 15 points in the last two.

Oliver downed Vocational, 23 to 15, and Langley trimmed Carrick, 31 to 25, in other Section II tussles.

The action among the W. P. I. A. L. teams was hot and heavy. In Sector I, New Kensington downed Oakmont, 26 to 20. Leetsdale continued its fast pace in Section II.

Butler was upset in Section III by Beaver Falls, 24 to 23, while New Castle took the section lead, defeating Ellwood City, 35 to 10.

ALIQUIPPA AHEAD

Aliquippa remained in the race for Section IV honors, beating Freedom, 48 to 22, and in Section V, Monessen downed Donora, 24 to 16. Ford City was upset in Section VI by Freeport, 19 to 15, and in Section VII, Homestead defeated Munhall, 30 to 19, while McKeesport stopped Clairton, 25 to 22.

Rankin beat Braddock for the second time, 40 to 32, in Section VIII. Sewickley Township remained in the title race in Section XI, downing Latrobe, 25 to 16. Jeannette upset Greensburg, 20 to 18; Georges sewed up the flag in Section XIII, whipping Point Marion, 22 to 7, and in Section XV, Canonsburg took the lead by downing Carmichaels, 24 to 8.

In a non-league fray, Uniontown defeated Scottdale, 27 to 16.

CONFERENCE FORMED

Claude H. Hubbard, athletic director at Arnold School, has announced the formation of a Tri-state Preparatory School Conference, with Arnold, Western Reserve Academy, of Hudson, O., and Columbus Academy, of Columbus, O.

Competition will be limited to basketball and football. The spring basketball teams of Columbus and Arnold will meet this year at Columbus.

The basketball committee of the W. P. I. A. L., headed by George W. Cassler, of Coraopolis, was meeting in the Fort Pitt Hotel today to arrange dates and pairings for the annual elimination series between the various sectional winners.

VANITIES DEFEATED

WARREN, O., Feb. 18.—The Goldenson Vanities, of Pittsburgh, bowed to the Leavittsburg A. C. here last night, 49 to 24. Susie Bonweller was the big star with 12 field goals and three fouls.

GOOSBY WINS, DATTO IS STOPPED

By HARRY KECK
Sports Editor

They'll have to bring in one of the first-rank middleweights if they ever hope to beat Frankie Goosby, Cherokee Tom Cox's clever Negro star, in this man's town. They brought in a good game young fellow named Paul Delaney from New York last night to do the job, and, while he put up a good battle, Goosby, fighting in that methodical, machine-like manner that he has perfected, was just too good.

Paul was in there trying from start to finish, and his rallies at times drew cheers from the crowd, but it was no use. Goosby, with his advantages in height, reach, boxing skill and punching power, was a standout. Indeed, he did not appear to be extending himself at times.

Frankie dropped Delaney, who looks not unlike Mickey Walker in the latter's younger days, for no count with a left hook to the jaw as early as the third round and softened him up gradually and dropped him again in the eighth, this time for a count of eight. He appeared to ease off in the last two rounds, with Delaney very tired, but still willing. Goosby weighed 156½ pounds and Delaney 156¼.

RILEY STOPS DATTO

Datto couldn't catch up with his clever opponent and never had a chance after his first punch, a left to the body, knocked Riley off balance to the floor.

Jimmy Dean, Erie Negro lightweight, rallied from knockdowns for counts of one and nine in the opening round to beat Patsy Hennigan, of Clairton, all of the way after that, and scored a nine-second knockdown himself in the fourth round, but the judges disagreed and the referee's vote went to Hennigan, to the pronounced disapproval of the crowd. Hennigan again was guilty of a lot of back-pedaling and a lack of fighting inclination.

TRIBUTE PAID SCHAAF

It was announced three 10-round bouts will feature next Friday night's show at the Arena, with Paulie Walker boxing Tiger Joe Randall, Frank Novak meeting Jack Paliat and Morrie Sherman taking on Billy Holt.

The fans stood in the darkened arena and paid a silent tribute to the memory of the late Ernie Schaaf as Timekeeper Tommy Grant counted him out on the bell before the main bout. Announcer Harry Klaas staged the gesture. The ring lights accidentally went out during the second bout and the boxers continued with the other lights turned on until the overhead lighting was resumed.

HANDBALL LOOP RIVALS SET FOR BATTLE

CITY HANDBALL LEAGUE
STANDING OF THE TEAMS

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN

Lou Alman and his classy Y. M. H. A. crew seek vengeance this afternoon for the setback in last Saturday's fray with Dick Koubek's Keystone Athletic Club contingent. Today's card of City Handball League action calls for jaunt of the Keystoners to the Y. M. H. A. domain, all of which presages likelihood of a bitter battle.

Victory for Keystone will be likely to complicate the Class A title chase considerably, for the second place Downtown Y. M. C. A. outfit on form, at least, should account for P. A. A. once more on the Y courts.

LEADERS GROUPED

Y. M. H. A., Y. M. C. A. and K. A. C. would thus be grouped within short hailing distance of one another with consequent encouragement of prospect of hot competition down the stretch next month.

Meanwhile in the Class B sector, Downtown Y will strive to retain its runner-up post in the face of vigorous challenge from Eddie Roche and his P. A. A. adherents in the latters' bailiwick. Y. M. H. A. should have litle difficulty in its invasion of the Keystone dominion, the K. A. C. secondary host having succeeded in copping but one decision in 30 starts.

As the handballers swing toward the concluding stages of their inter-club campaign, squash racquets devotees set the local pot to boiling after a fortnight of comparative tranquillity. Bill Bickel and Charley Fagan, Keystone stars, joust today in windup of the annual K. A. C. class A intramural tournament. Their tussle should be well worth beholding, though the rangy Bickel looms as slight favorite.

TOURNEY ON MONDAY

The Keystone enclosures will be scene of the city class B championship tourney from Monday next till March 4. A large entry list is probable with representatives of the home club, the Pittsburgh Golf Club, P. A. A., University Club, Edgeworth Club and Allegheny Country Club likely to compete. The city class A titular meeting will likewise be a Keystone feature, play being billed from March 5 to include March 12.

A class B championship tournament gets under way on the Y. M. H. A. courts this afternoon.

|---|---|---|
| Dehnert | F | Lawry |
| Banks | F | Littell |
| Herlihy | C | Brownlee |
| Barry | G | Klinzing |
| Hickey | G | Rice |

The crack Cleveland Rosenblum-Celtics, rated the greatest professional basketball team in the world, will make their second appearance of the season here this afternoon, taking part in a floor clinic and a game at Duquesne University. The Celtics will meet the Pittsburghers, a newly formed local all-star team. The clinic, which will precede the game, will get under way at 2 o'clock.

In a previous contest here, the Celtics easily defeated the Paterson (N. J.) pros at Motor Square Garden. The Pittsburghers, with stars of the caliber of Timmy Lawry, former Pitt ace; Harry Brownlee and Phil Rice, of Westminster, and Moon Klinzing, Ken Loeffler and Whitey Littell in the lineup, are expected to furnish the Celtics with a busy afternoon. The contest will be played under intercollegiate rules.

Dave Kerr, former star and coach of the Celtics, will officiate at the clinic. The Celtics will demonstrate various play, with Kerr furnishing lecturing on different phases of the sport.

JACKETS SEEK TENTH VICTORY IN ROW

| | W. | L. | Pct. | | W. | L. | Pct. |

| Waynesb'g | 4 | 2 | .667 | Thiel | 1 | 7 | .125 |

Waynesburg College's Yellow Jackets of basketball can enhance their position in third place in the Tri-State Conference tonight and move into a position where they may successfully fight it out later with Geneva and Grove City for the leadership as they meet Thiel on the Waynesburg floor. The Jackets also will be out to record their tenth consecutive victory.

The college floor program for tonight in the district is a heavy one. In addition to the Tech-Georgetown game here and the Waynesburg-Thiel tussle, West Virginia appears at Penn State; Wesleyan meets Salem; Lock Haven takes on Indiana and Potomac State faces Fairmont.

GENEVA DEFEATED

GROVE CITY, Pa., Feb. 18.—Grove City's varsity basketball team turned out to be the first able to defeat Geneva in Conference competition. The Grovers downed the Covenanters here last night, 35-to-31, a second half rally bringing the victory.

Deems, Grove City forward, led in the scoring with 14 points. Aultman, of Geneva counted 13 markers for Geneva. The lineup:

MARSHALL LOSES

CINCINNATI, Feb. 18.—(AP.)—Marshal College and the University of Cincinnati, tied for fifth place in the Buckeye Conference basketball race, fought it out last night for fourth position and Cincinnati won, 31 to 28. The Bearcats took the lead from the visitors after they had held it throughout most of the first half, and fought desperately to keep the margin. They led at the half, 18 to 17.

YALE FIVE COPS

CAVALRY, PARK RIDERS MEET

The 308th Cavalry polo ists, in facing South Park at Hunt Armory tonight, will be attempting to regain some of the ground lost in the Pittsburgh Polo League standing when they dropped three out of their first four contests. With crucial tilts with Shady Side Academy, Vangs and 107th Field Artillery looming menacingly ahead, both contestants in tonight's debacle are expected to make a strong bid for the inside track.

The lineup:

|---|---|---|
| Landau | No. 1 | Young |
| Voltz (c) | No. 2 | Linton |

State Ring Team Bows To Harvard

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Feb. 18.—(AP.)—Despite a knockout victory by Capt. John A. McAndrews, Penn State's eastern intercollegiate titleholder, the Harvard boxing team pounded out a 5-to-3 victory over the Nittany Lions last night.

With the count tied at 3 each, after both teams had won two and drawn two bouts, Dick Woolbert, 200-pound Penn State football tackle, took a straight right to the jaw for the count, but not before landing several hard punches on Bradford Simmons. It was the Crimson heavyweight's fifth straight first-round knockout victory.

General Burrows, Negro boxer, of Aliquippa, won two bouts within three nights in Ohio this week, knocking out Tom Chaplow in Youngstown on Monday and beating Tex Takla in East Liverpool on Wednesday.

The Moose Temple show is on for next Wednesday night, with Anson Green boxing Joe Ruggurzoni in the eight-round main bout and Fritzie Zivic battling Charley Blozevich in the six-round semi-final. There will be five four-round preliminaries.

TOURNEY ABANDONED

SHARON, Pa., Feb. 18.—The Mercer County Class B high school basketball tournament has been abandoned after 10 years of play.

MRS. HILL COPS GOLF CROWN

PALM BEACH, Fla., Feb. 18.—(AP.)—Mrs. Opal S. Hill's miraculous putter carried her to victory over Maureen Orcutt, of Haworth, N. J., in the finals of the annual Florida golf championship for women at the Palm Beach Country Club.

The veteran Kansas City star won, 5 and 4, in the final round yesterday. Mrs. Hill was able to sink her putts from almost any spot on the green. She had eight one-putt greens during the 14 holes the match lasted.

At the second hole, Mrs. Hill took the lead and thereafter was never headed. The Kansas City player won the third with a 30-foot putt. The first hole won by Miss Orcutt was the fifth.

The end of the match came on the fourteenth with Mrs. Hill firing a remarkable pitch shot to the green, which put her within two feet of the cup, while Miss Orcutt was 10 feet away. Mrs. Hill was down easily to take the match.

Defeat kept Miss Orcutt from winning the Flagler gold chalice trophy, which must be won thrice for permanent possession. She had won it twice before. Mrs. Hill won it for the first time yesterday.

Tallman Captures Belleair Crown

TROJANS CINCH TITLE

BERKELEY, Cal., Feb. 18.—(AP.)—The University of Southern California clinched the basketball championship of the Southern Division Pacific Coast Conference here last night, defeating University of California, 28 to 27.

LIFE AND BATTLES OF JIM CORBETT

No. 5—Knockout of Kid McCoy

[Editor's Note: Owing to the critical nature of James J. Corbett's illness, a review of the big moments in the career of the great heavyweight champion of other days is especially timely now. Following is the description by W. S. Farnsworth, noted sports writer, of Corbett's five-round knockout victory over Kid McCoy in the Old Madison Square Garden in New York on August 30, 1900.]

By W. S. FARNSWORTH

(Copyright, 1933, by International News Service.)

McCoy, the dapper, lay curled on the floor like a cod in a pot. His curly head butted into the resin-sprinkled mat and he writhed like a man who had partaken of cucumber salad and ice cream too early in the season. Over him stood Corbett, a frown on his pallid face and a scowl in his sunken eyes.

Outside the ropes thousands of spectators stood on their feet and shrieked like a railroad yard full of locomotives. The shrieking was not so loud, however, but that the violent clanging of the gong could be heard.

The clanging meant that McCoy had lost the fight; that of the two exponents of refined fisticuffs Corbett was the kingpin.

The finish came in the fifth round. Corbett, who from the very beginning had hovered around the Kid, pecking him as a humming bird pecks at a flower, went in pell-mell in the fourth round. He worked McCoy into a corner, pinned him there and hammered at him with both hands.

KID PROTECTS BODY

McCoy kept his head covered and skipped away to another corner, just stopping long enough in transit to let fly a wild overhand right for the head. Corbett jammed him in the angle of the ring again and again. McCoy kept his forearms crossed above his forehead as Jim swung and hooked and uppercut him. Then Corbett tried a right at the ribs and the effect was magical. McCoy dropped his arms and scurried across the ring.

The solicitude displayed by McCoy in regard to his midsection was remembered by Corbett in the fifth round. Just as soon as he could find the opening he swung his left into that part of the body where the solar plexus is supposed to be housed. McCoy gave an audible grunt and clinched.

ENDS IN FIFTH ROUND

As soon as Corbett could free himself from McCoy's embrace he rushed the kid to the ropes. Another cruel smash took McCoy across the midriff and he bellowed like a calf. He commenced to sink, but there was plenty of time for Corbett to get in another of those nerve-racking lefts. He drove it in, and the Kid, with his hands across his stomach, his knees bent and his neck curled, kept going forward.

While he was still in that position to be punched without any infraction of the rules, Corbett dealt him a couple of hard punches on the head. That was the last seen of Mr McCoy. His forehead bumped the floor, he rolled over and wriggled, the spectators roared, the referee counted, the bell clanged, the crowd swarmed into the ring—and it was all over.

PITT TANKERS ROUT TECH

Pitt's varsity swimming team's two-year perfect record in the Eastern Collegiate Swimming Association remains intact today. Yesterday, the Panther splashers easily defeated Carnegie Tech's squad, 41 to 18, in a dual meet staged in the Trees gymnasium pool.

Two Pitt records were smashed. Joe Schmeiler cracking his own pool mark of 2:41 2-10 in the 200-yard breast-stroke by covering the distance in 2:38 3-10, and the Pitt 160-yard relay team setting a new mark of 1:14 3-10. The summary:

on the nose of Leo Mackey, umpire of the game, following the clash. Wilson was running toward the Pitt dressing room and as he passed Mackey, who was traveling in the opposite direction, Whitey simply stuck out his right and it found a resting place on Leo's nose.

Dr. Carlson grabbed the official and took him on into the Pitt quarters, where he gave him medical attention. Wilson's action was regrettable and may lead to his being suspended for the remainder of the season. The lad made no attempt to pummel Leo . . . in the heat of the moment he simply couldn't refrain from letting one go.

Ordinarily a quiet and exceptionally well behaved youngster, it was difficult to understand Wilson's act.

New Friends and Interests Heal Broken Hearts

How can one forget the blow that left life meaningless?

A desperate girl would like to know. For five long years she has struggled to be free from grief; struggled to forget. Yet, today, life's blacker than ever.

Have you, too, been struggling?

Is there a memory that shuts out all joy for you?

Then each line of this letter will carry its message to you and perhaps, in the answer, you may find a little help. I hope so, friend.

Dear Elsie Robinson:

You have soothed so many broken hearts that I am coming to you, as a last resort, with my terrible grief. Maybe you can tell me how I can forget the past. I don't know. I haven't been able to forget, myself, and I am getting to the point where I simply can't face the future, so I am asking for your help.

Five years ago I was a young, carefree girl. I say carefree, and that is true. How true, I only realize now, when I know what heart-break is. But I never was frivolous or giddy, and I didn't care so very much for boys. Perhaps that is why I fell so very, very deeply in love when Alan came along.

I met him at a house party that my cousin gave, and we were instantly attracted to each other. He lived in the same town where I lived, and worked only a short distance from my own place of employment. He took me out often, and was always wonderful to me. We were soon engaged, and we looked forward with great happiness to our future together.

CAN'T FORGET TRAGEDY

It was just a month before the date set for our marriage that a drunken driver ran into his car, and he was so badly injured that he died a few hours later in the hospital, where passing motorists took him. That was almost four years ago, but it seems to me as if it were only yesterday.

Oh, I have tried so hard to forget, but I can't. I simply can't! Everything I do makes me think, even against my will, of Alan. No matter how hard I try, I just can't keep from thinking of this terrible tragedy.

I don't want to think of it. I don't want to think that my whole life is finished. Yet what can I do? I feel sometimes as if the only answer is to just end it all; I am so unhappy. You have said that the past can be forgotten, but how? I have tried to do it and failed. Is there some way—some way that I haven't tried?

Please help me. I am desperate. CLARA.

Isn't there a way out? Yes there is, my dear.

Stop trying to forget!

Stop wanting to forget!

Does that seem like strange, unreasonable advice? Yet, if you will think it over, you'll see that it is not unreasonable.

By trying to forget, you are making yourself unable to forget. You are actually shutting yourself in with your grief; devoting your whole life to remembering your grief; barring out every other interest, and every chance of happiness.

So don't try to forget—but find some new things to remember.

FIND NEW INTERESTS

The world is full of healing for you if you will accept that healing. Everywhere there are new friends, new interests, new duties to fill your mind and heart. Take these things and use them.

It will be hard at first. You will have to force yourself to act a part—go through meaningless motions. But presently, if you'll persist, you'll find new interest awakening, new sympathy warming.

And presently there will be something else in your heart and mind beside the dust of dreams.

So come out of the cell you have made for yourself. Come into the world again. Look around you. See all those others whose sadness is as great as yours—who need your comforting. Do not withhold that comfort. Do not hide in Yesterday, shirking the duty of Today.

Grief that destroys life, as you are letting grief destroy yours, is not beautiful; is not even decent. Grief like that is simply egotism and selfishness.

Pit it away, child, as you'd put away any other vicious habit. Stop desecrating the memory of the boy you loved by vicious brooding. Show your love for him by living for him. Heal the pain of life by living some more!

"young farmer" near St Honore, Quebec Province

It is good for us all, if the money is there in the purse to do it with, to see some other country, and some other folk, besides our own. Besides finding heart-and-head rest in strange surroundings, and laying up memories and riches in knowledge, we see our own short-comings as with other eyes, when once we are home again. We see the good in ourselves and our country, and the lacks in us both. We see other people quieter, and more able to get spiritual flavor day by day, out of their lives, than perhaps we have been doing. And we see how they are doing it—the why of it.

There is a country very close to ours, no more beautiful, beautiful in different ways, but wiser in some ways than we, keeping the grace and the loveliness of their country-sides more untouched, and more free of cheap defacements than we have done. The Province of Quebec, from end to end, is a rest to those of us who lament the huge sign-boards that face us on every curve of the beauty-spots of our farmland.

Don't expect an artist, and thousands of others besides, not to rave with joy when he sees, or she sees, a lovely country of farms, streams, forests, villages, mountains, with its green face just as God made it!

Here are but just a very few—I could illustrate a book—and two of them, on the faces that have thronged my various visits—of the charming French-Canadian faces that beamed at us—my small boy, my side-partner, and my mother—and made our stay up and down their land one long delight.

How to Keep Well

By Dr. Royal S. Copeland

Alarming Symptoms of Disease

Dr. Copeland

To many persons, nothing is more distressing than the sight of blood. It is particularly alarming when the blood is noticed in the sputum, or is brought up by coughing. This is an important symptom to a physician, who technically refers to it as "hemoptysis."

May I assure my readers who have written me about it, that the presence of blood in the sputum does not necessarily indicate the existence of a serious ailment. Contrary to the common belief, the presence of blood in the sputum is not a sure sign of tuberculosis.

Of course a person suffering from early tuberculosis may have bloodtinged sputum. On this account it would be a grave mistake to ignore this symptom. It warrants a visit to your doctor. He will determine the cause of the blood stain and in most instances will be able to relieve you immediately of much unnecessary worry.

Blood in the sputum can be traced to a slight scratch or erosion in the throat. A chronic cough, as in chronic bronchitis or asthma, may be sufficient to cause slight bleeding. A sore throat, inflamed tonsils, pharyngitis or laryngitis, are other ailments in which this symptom may be observed.

I have known many persons to become unduly alarmed by the presence of blood in the sputum. Some hesitate to go to a doctor for fear they will be told they have tuberculosis. Others have rushed to the physician and after a careful examination the bleeding has been traced to swollen gums. You can imagine their surprise and relief at this information.

Tuberculosis should be suspected in anyone who notices blood in the sputum, if there are other symptoms, too. Among these are extreme exhaustion over a period of time, loss of weight, sweating at night, and persistent cough. When these signs of illness are unheeded, the disease may become serious, but if it is recognized and treated early, it may be checked.

Too many persons fear tuberculosis and yet deliberately ignore nature's warning signs. This is a pity, because with proper care and nursing, tuberculosis is curable. It is a different story if neglected and permitted to reach an advanced stage. This unfavorable progress can be prevented if you heed such danger signals as blood in the sputum, cough, loss of appetite, "pep" and weight.

It may be impossible to make a diagnosis of tuberculosis by a simple physical examination. Suspected cases should be subjected to a thorough X-ray examination of the lungs. By means of this examination it is possible actually to visualize the lungs and their defects.

The diagnosis is confirmed by the finding of the germs of tuberculosis in the sputum. In that event, it is imperative that the afflicted individual receive immediate care.

Do not stand in fear of tuberculosis. Guard against it by vigilant attention to the health of your body.

Continuation of Love's Reawakening

By ADELE GARRISON

Madge Finds That Hugh Shares Her Suspicion

"Is it all right? Do you want him to come in?"

Mr. Merton was already at the door, his hand upon the latch, his eyes upon the rapidly advancing figure of Hugh Grantland, as he asked the questions.

"Oh, yes," I said breathlessly, for this sudden appearance of Hugh Grantland at the mountain glen tea room filled me with startled forebodings.

That Hugh was in search of us was made plain at once. Hatless, his hair ruffled by the speed with which he had driven his car, he rushed over to the table at which we were sitting with outstretched hands.

"You—are all right?" he demanded.

"Indeed I am," I said. "Why do you ask?"

"No one has tried to molest you?"

"No, but I never was so glad to see anybody in my life. I was just trying to figure out the quickest way of getting in touch with you. I had a most disquieting telephone summons to come here and receive a message—"

"I know," he interrupted surprisingly; "from a Chinese who directed you to look under a candlestick for a message."

I looked at him in wide-eyed astonishment. How in the world had he been able to discover this, when I had spoken of the message to no one but Mary?

He smiled indulgently at my patent bewilderment.

"All things, even the subsidizing of telephone operators, are possible to our branch of the government service, you know."

WATCHED CAREFULLY

I did know, indeed, of the many avenues of information open to Hugh Grantland in the government service of which he was so important a cog; but it gave me a queer, tingly little feeling to realize, as he evidently meant me to do, that no slightest movement of mine in this undertaking so fraught with danger was escaping the careful watch he was keeping over me.

"What does it all mean?" I asked.

"I wish I knew," he replied soberly. "There was no mistake, was there? It was a Chinese voice that telephoned you?"

"It sounded very much like one."

"There's only one thing to do, of course," he said, "and that is to get in touch with Lee Chow immediately. I should have telephoned as soon as I heard about the message, but I didn't get it until after you had started, and I was too anxious about you to do anything until I had assured myself of your safety."

I stirred restlessly, wishing that his anxiety for me was not so plainly shown in his face and eyes. Mary's presence I did not mind. Hugh's care for me was an old story to her. But I surmised that both Mr. and Mrs. Merton were keen observers, and I was acutely conscious that they could not fail to comprehend the feeling that lay behind Hugh's solicitude.

"How soon can you get him?" I asked quickly, and in my query there was as much desire to divert Hugh's attention from me as anxiety for enlightenment concerning this mysterious countryman of Lee Chow, which we both felt only Hugh's high-born Chinese friend could give.

PECULIARITY NOTICED

Hugh shot a keen, quick look at me and, to my relief, ceased sounding the personal note. He was the officer in action when he spoke.

"You've received a message which needs him," he said. "Where is it?"

I picked it up from the table and handed it to him, also the magnifying glass Mr. Merton had provided, speaking a word of introduction to the Mertons as I did so. Hugh nodded courteously, but abstractedly, and began reading the note at once.

I saw him clinch his fist as he read the last page, and guessed that he was imagining his sinewy fingers clasping the neck of the fiend who had written that hideous threat, slowly choking the life from him. But his face did not change, and when he had finished reading he went over it again more carefully.

"Did you notice anything peculiar about the wording of this note?" he asked when he had finished, and I felt suddenly upon my mettle. I had discovered something queer in the phraseology, but had not had time to give it any consideration.

"Yes, I did," I answered.

"What was it? Tell me quickly," he said imperatively.

To water hanging baskets so that there is no splashing put a funnel in the center of the basket so that the foliage hides this, and then fill this every day with water. This gives sufficient moisture to the plants and the water does not drip on the floor.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Divorced Widow's Name

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Do I understand correctly that it is proper for a divorced widow to continue writing her name Mrs. Horace Loughton Smith?

Suppose the divorced husband has re-married, and is now living in a distant state? How then should wife No. 1 have her cards engraved?

READER.

The best form of name for a divorced woman to use is, in my opinion, the combination of the last name of her maiden name with the last name of her married name.

Let us suppose that Mary Allen Browne marries and later divorces Horace Loughton Smith. Then I hope that she will choose to use the form of name of MRS. BROWNE-SMITH. This is a dignified form, and the form quickly tells the story . . . that the maiden name was Browne, that the married name was Smith, and that the woman is divorced. And the fact that she chooses to use a form of name that does not include her first name shows that she has excellent sense and taste about such things.

The next best form . . . but one not nearly so good . . . is the use of the initial of her first name. That is, MRS. M. BROWNE SMITH.

And the least good form is for her to use her first name with the other two names: MRS. MARY BROWNE SMITH. This form is to be avoided, if possible.

Paper Napkins

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1—What is the proper thing to do when you are served soup? Should you lay your spoon on the service plate, or let it remain in the soup dish?

2—When you are finished eating is it proper to fold your napkin, or lay it alongside your plate? As many tearooms serve paper napkins, should they be crumpled and placed on the table?

READER.

1—If the soup is served in a soup plate, leave your spoon in the soup plate after you have finished eating the soup. If the soup is served in a cream soup cup or a boullion cup, leave the spoon on the plate that is placed under the cup.

2—If you are dining in a restaurant, leave your napkin "as is" on the right or left of your plate . . . whichever is convenient.

If you are visiting in a home, watch your hostess to see what she does with her napkin. This will indicate the custom of the home, and with this you follow suit.

Don't crumple the paper napkins. This makes a most unpleasant appearance, unnecessarily so.

(And by the way, I'm delighted that you asked this question about paper napkins, for no one has ever sent in this question, and I have so often observed this crumpling of paper napkins that I had wished that someone would ask about it. Thank you.)

Contract Bridge

HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

A Heartbreaking Hand

Bridge players sometimes wonder who deals the cards when peculiar quirks of distribution bring to naught even the most carefully planned play. I recently watched the play of a hand at Duplicate, which at many tables had, no doubt, been overbid, but which presented some of the most unusual variations in play and a number of cases of overbidding, which brought about unusual results. The hand was:

South—Dealer.

North and South vulnerable.

| South | West | North | East |
|---|---|---|---|
| 1 ♡ (1) | Pass | 1 ♠ | Pass (2) |
| 2 N T (3) | Pass | 3 ♠ (4) | Pass |
| 4 ♠ (5) | Pass | Pass | Double (6) |
| Pass | Pass | Redouble (7) | Pass |
| Pass | Pass | | |

1—A better bid than one notrump. The hand does not justify the expectation of making many bids with it.

2—East hopes that the opponents may get into trouble. In any event, a diamond bid is not advisable.

3—Very much of an overbid. The correct bid is one notrump.

4—After South's strong bidding, North feels that there should be game in the hand. Obviously, a bid of three clubs would be bad, and a bid of three notrump on the distribution entirely unsound. The Jump bid of notrump can scarcely be passed.

5—This bid should not have been made. South has already overbid his hand and should be content to let bad enough alone.

6—On the bidding, East does not have a very sound Penalty Double. The King of diamonds is probably worthless in view of South's strong bids, and there is no assurance—in fact, little probability—that West holds the heart Ace, or, for that matter, the club King.

7—The Redouble comes almost as a matter of course. If the hand is makable, and North believes that it is on his partner's bidding, the additional 240 points may well be collected.

The Opening lead was the heart Queen, which the Declarer unwisely covered the King, as the card was a marked singleton and West won with the Ace and returned the suit, East ruffing. Now East chose to return a club, and the Declarer, of necessity, took the finesse in that suit. West won with the King and returned another heart. The Declarer ruffed with the 8 and hoped to limit his losses to 1 trick when East refused to over-ruff, discarding a club. Dummy was now entered by leading a small club to the Ace, and the 9 of spades was led through. North hoping against hope that West held the Queen. This hope was dissipated, however, when the trick was won by East with that card. East now had nothing left to lead except a diamond or a trump, and chose the diamond. As North had nothing to gain by the finesse, it was refused, the trick being won with the Ace. A second round of spades was led, which was won by East, and the King of diamonds laid down. North, of course, ruffed, and won the remaining tricks. North and South in this instance suffered a penalty of 1000 points by South's unjustifiable overbidding.

TODAY'S QUESTION

♠ A Q J 10 8 4 2 ♡ A K J 10 5 ◇ — ♣ A

Answer—Two spades. In accordance with the Culbertson System of 1933, any Opening two-bid in a suit is Forcing, even though the bid is sufficient for game or more than sufficient for game. The Responding Hand must make at least one response. If partner responds with a bid of two notrump, the player holding the above hand should then bid four hearts, which would require the Responding Hand to keep the bidding open for another round.

The Toy Quilt - Made of Bias Tape and Applique

Directions for Christmas Tree

First—Trace the design in the center of a white muslin or broadcloth block, nine inches square.

Second—Trace the triangle of the tree on green material and cut out, allowing for turn under. Turn narrow hems and applique the triangle on the white block with six-strand thread of a darker shade of green. Use the button-hole stitch.

Third—Cut a piece of tan or brown bias tape for the trunk, and pieces of red bias tape for the box. Stitch in place according to the design.

Courtesy Real Trait, Too

By CONSTANCE CAMERON

The 11-year-old son adored his dad. Dad just couldn't be wrong. Dad couldn't be beaten in anything by anybody!

Well, that's a lovely spirit. It's an ideal relationship, fundamentally, between a boy and his father. But son hit a snag and had to learn that even ideals may hold ramifications and compromises.

Dad and Mr. Jones had played golf one sunny afternoon. Next morning dad and son and Mr. Jones were again at the club, only dad was changing his clothes in the locker room and son and Mr. Jones talked outside.

"My dad beat you yesterday, didn't he?" It wasn't a question. It was, rather, a statement of fact.

"Why—no," objected Mr. Jones mildly, " as I remember it, he shot a 92 and I shot a 91."

With flashing eyes, the lad stiffened and he retorted, not too politely, but very staunchly: "You did not. Nobody ever beats dad."

The man was patient, yet it isn't enjoyable to be contradicted even in such a worthy cause as loyalty. "Go and ask him," was all he replied.

The boy did so, and didn't come back until his dad did. And dad then and there asked him to apologize to Mr. Jones for having so obviously and baldly doubted his word.

The boy did it with bad grace, but Mr. Jones said kindly: "It's great to admire and believe in your father, boy, but remember that he can't always win, and the fact that he is a game, sportsmanlike loser is far more to his credit."

And what a constructive thought that was to leave with the lad. It took not a whit from his belief in dad, but showed him that it is the big man who can be courteous to the victor, and in so doing is worthy of a still deeper admiration.

Loyalty is, of course, a worthwhile trait in children, but courtesy has its place in life, too. The one without the other leaves something to be desired. In this instance the boy came away with something, a lesson you might call it, that will have a decided bearing on his future dealings with others.

Household Hints

Beeswax dissolved in turpentine until the consistency of molasses, then applied to furniture with a woolen cloth will remove all scratches.

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

Even now there are chests bearing the red marks of sunburn. This blemish has a hold-on quality that makes it an all-the-year resident. Get after it by rubbing well with a cut lemon, letting the juice dry thoroughly, anointing the skin surface with cold cream. Vigorous use of the bath brush with fairly hot soap suds helps but don't do it just before lemon is used. Skin surface, too sensitive then, may fluff up and get fussy.

Natural blondes are not all identical in complexion colorings, and that's why the old time rule of light-colored powder and pinkish rouge doesn't hold good. In many cases the skin has a yellow cast, in which event the blonde can wear a powder almost as dark as the brunette. Ochre calcimine tends to bring out the golden glints in the halo, and orange red rouge falls into step with the color scheme. The smart-seeing eye will solve the problem.

We All Can't be Satisfied It Isn't Human Nature

This reminds us of the fact that lots of folks are not satisfied with their present living quarters. Some want to move into new houses, some want to move into a different apartment, and still others want to eat somebody else's cooking for awhile. While these folks are thinking about moving, others are thinking of buying or selling something, trading this or that and lots of other wants too numerous to mention.

How can you reach these people? There is only one answer. Through the classified columns of The Sun-Telegraph, which takes your message into more homes than any other daily paper published in Pittsburgh.

Call Grant 5400 and ask for an ad taker. These young ladies, trained in the art of writing result-producing copy, will assist you in the preparation of your ad.

Playgirls in Love

By MAY CHRISTIE

CHAPTER II.

"Why, Mr. Deane . . . I'm sorry . . . I—I must have been a little faint!"

"That's okay—I mean I'm sorry too—." He still held her hand, and, as she suddenly realized that strong, warm fingers clasped her own, she had the strangest telling as if an electric current raced from that point of contact through her whole slim body, flowing, flowing, between herself and him as though to bind each to the other, and for a fleeting moment the very blood in her veins seemed to sing with joy, and she could hear her own heart thudding.

Then Judith drew her hand away, a flush staining her cheeks. She made as though to rise, but Barry Deane insisted she must wait a moment. He said, with a boyish earnestness, that he couldn't forgive himself for having made her work so late, and wearing her out, and he would get a taxi for her, and if she didn't feel all right in the morning he would speak to the manager in her department, and fix it so that she could take a day off, and rest up a bit.

"He's being heavenly kind," thought Judith, with a thrill that was a little pang of pain for the flying loveliness of this minute. "I wasn't wrong—he's just as fine and wonderful as his handsome face would indicate." Tears ached at her throat and sprang to her eyes. By sheer force of will she drove them back, quickly lowering her protective tangle of thick lashes. "He mustn't see—oh God, he mustn't see—I mustn't cry—I'd sooner die than have him know what a fool I am, and have him despise me for it!"

TEARS FORCED BACK

As though he had a sixth sense that was a receiving station for her voiceless wish, or perhaps it was his own innate chivalry or common sense that told him he must pull himself together, he suddenly moved over to his desk and made a great rustling with some papers.

"Please wait. I just want to verify a name or two, and then stick these sheets into their envelopes. No, I don't need any help." He didn't look up until Judith had regained her composure.

The tears that his sympathy had brought having been forced down, Judith, with her hands folded in her lap, stole a long look at Barry Deane as he bent over the papers. Under the strong light of the lamp on his desk, his face looked tired, she thought—there were two horizontal lines etched on his clever-looking forehead. It was a strong and clean-cut face, with a finely modeled nose and mouth and chin, the head beautifully shaped. His thick brown hair that he wore brushed back, shone under the light like polished lacquer.

To be loved by such a man—to feel his kiss—a tremor passed through Judith as against her will and better judgment her eyes rested on his mouth that was such a mixture of strength and sweetness.

LIKE A DREAM

This was a dream—a lovely dream that took one's breath—the traffic of the day had stilled outside, and the four walls of Barry's office shut them in—just he and she—as though no one else existed in a magic universe.

The dream was still in Judith's lovely eyes when Barry said: "There, that job's finished, thank the Lord!" and jerked his chair back from his desk and smiled in a friendly way at her. His teeth made a flash of white in his lean, brown face, and when he smiled it lit his whole face up, and the tiredness seemed to go, and he suddenly looked extraordinarily boyish.

"You look better now," he said, his keen eyes noting the color in her face and unrouged lips that had been pale before, "d'you mind if I talk to you like a Dutch uncle?"

"You're going to scold me? Isn't that so? I've kept you late with my stupidity and all—."

Judith smiled at him uncertainly and apologetically.

"The list be darned. I was thinking of your health. I don't believe you took time off for your lunch today! When you came in here you looked as though the fairies or a puff of wind would spirit you away. Now I ask you, is that sensible?"

"Fairies have nothing to do with me," Judith replied, a twinkle in her pretty eyes, but her tone decisive. Then she added, as though she were thinking out aloud: "But I suppose they ought to have, because I was brought up on fairy stories."

"What kind of stories?" Barry leaned forward in his chair, his eyes fixed on her face. Was she speaking literally or metaphorically? What kind of a girl was this?

"Stories of little green men and haunted woods and fairy palaces and hobgoblins and banshees. My mother used to tell them to me every night when I was a child. She was brought up in Ireland, you see," said Judith, smiling faintly.

BARRY AMUSED

"Ah! That accounts for lots of things." He was looking straight at Judith's eyes again and thinking they were the most hauntingly lovely things he'd ever seen. What history lay back of them?

"Oh, yes, it accounts for my temper, too, and for the fun I can get out of little silly things, and for times—like today—when my wits go wool-gathering." She was entirely unselfconscious now, encouraged by this sympathetic listener.

"When things don't come my way—I mean when life isn't just the way I want it to be—I can get an awful lot of fun out of mentally doing what my mother used to tell me to do when she'd tuck me up in bed and say goodnight to me when I was little. She'd say: "Turn over now, like a good child, and look at the pictures in the pillow.'"

He was intrigued. Not only was her voice as musical as a little stream that tinkles over stones, but there seemed to be a vein of imagination and of poetry in her.

"Go on. Tell me about the pictures. Did you really see them?"

"Certainly I did," said Judith. "I still can see those pictures, if I try hard in the dark!"

"And are they pleasant ones?" Barry Deane inquired, amused.

"Why, of course." She leaned forward, smiling shyly. "It isn't 'second sight' either, you know. But what I meant to say was that one's happiness is really inside of one-self, if you can only see it that way."

Synopsis

Judith Brian, young and pretty secretary in the Knickerbocker Bank, is attracted to Barry Deane, young executive. She is thrilled with the prospect of merely seeing him when summoned to his office. That night, she works late. Exhausted after a strenuous day, she almost faints in Barry's office. He insists that she rest awhile. For the first time, he is conscious of her beauty and longs to take her in his arms.

SUN-TELEGRAPH-WARNER JUNIOR KOMIC CLUB

Today the members of the Sun-Telegraph-Warner Theaters Junior Komic Club enjoyed the entertainment of several new acts of vaudeville presented and directed by Josh Dreano.

One unit consisting of Freddy Welding and his "Silver String Melody Boys" featured the singing and dancing of Joe Nevatta. The orchestra made up of Joe Compangna, John Welding, Sylvester Och, John Och and Phill Welding appeared at the Arsenal, Plaza and Etna-Harris chapters.

"The Great Moscoro," who has appeared before the Junior Komic Club members before, returns to once more astonish them with his feats of magic. He can pull more rabbits from the clothing of unsuspecting members than anyone who has ever entertained at these meetings. Today he proved the most interesting part of the meeting at the Enright, Rowland and Manor chapters.

Jimmy Andasco and Nick Marracino, known as "Nick and Jimmy," appeared at the Schenley, Belmar and Cameraphone with their saxaphone and accordion and proceeded to 'set the house on fire' with their comedy and chatter. The members refused to let these two boys go and they were forced to take several encores at each theater. Also appearing with these boys was Arthur Edwards, "World's Greatest Fire Eater." Needless to say that the members were amazed at the stunts this man did.

You Ain't in the Army Now

They are going to eliminate the close order drill that made top sarges bite themselves in exhaustion.

There is no reason for soldiers to march themselves bowlegged anymore.

We issued some famous commands in the days when a nation's life was in the suburbs of jeopardy. Our famous "column-and-half-right" is still quoted after the third drink.

Some other new orders follow. The first is "approaching enemy aircraft."

When a soldier hears that he is naturally like a turtle who also has to pull in his head to do his thinking.

The obvious formation for this order is every man for himself. In taking your post pick out one as chaperon in charge of barracks.

"Tanks dead ahead" is another modern rumor. The antidote for this is to deploy as couriers. In times of national stress and peril every man should have the instincts of a homing pigeon. He should be able to spread bad news far and wide and to the rear.

Retreating is not cowardice if you stop when you see a three-star general. You always have to leave the battle zone to get to the area where they give out medals.

There are many more disciplinary innovations which the old-time soldier will not recognize. The more we study army orders the less we care for the 30 dollars a month.

The earliest military command we remember was the one to march three times around the walls of Jericho just to hear a trombone solo. They claim it was a success but it didn't get any fan mail.

Any legionnaire planning to rejoin the army will do well to take our three-months course of home study. We will make a desk colonel out of you if you care to take a chance of getting shell-shocked from the telephone calls.

The Attack on Governor Roosevelt

Double Cause for Congratulations.

The entire nation rejoices in the fact that, so far as the President-elect is concerned, there were no harmful results of the insane attack made upon him at Miami.

The public finds additional cause for rejoicing in the fact that it really was AN INSANE attack.

Gov. Roosevelt has devoted his life to public service, and wishes now to devote his abilities and all his energies to the service of the nation, in accordance with the mandate of the voters.

It is inconceivable that any sane human being, whatever his political views, should have any feeling of animosity toward a man who at great personal sacrifice devotes himself to the public welfare.

It is therefore encouraging to know, from reports of Miami police, that the would-be assassin is an unbalanced creature, acting on the dictate of a mind absolutely unsound.

In other words, there is in the attack no indication of class hatred, or anything except maniacal impulse, a sudden outbreak that threatened the life of the President-elect and did so much harm otherwise.

That the would-be assassin is without mental responsibility and that he represents nothing in particular except his own insane impulse, is made clear by statements of the Miami police.

To them, the insane criminal, showing no sign of regret, no sense of personal anger, as is common with the insane, said he greatly admired Gov. Roosevelt "as a man" and added, "But I kill all Presidents." The words of a madman.

He declared that he had attempted to kill Gov. Roosevelt because "I have violent pains in my stomach."

Doctors who examined him found the scar of a great wound on his abdomen, and it is probable that physical suffering had caused the man to lose his mental balance.

He said also to the police that captured him, "No, I do not kill policemen. They work for a living."

The nation rejoices in the safety of President-elect Roosevelt and notes, with pride, the calmness and courage that he showed when the bullets were being fired promiscuously, rising in his car and saying to the enraged crowd, "I am all right," stopping the car, despite police protests, to take Mayor Cermak on the seat beside him, supporting him with his arms, all the way to the hospital.

The nation sympathizes with Mr. Cermak, Mayor of Chicago, victim of an attack not intended for him, sympathizes with his sorrowing family and admires the calm, courageous statements addressed to Gov. Roosevelt, "I am glad it was I, and not you."

There is comfort in the fact that this most distressing incident has emphasized and called forth, universally, expressions of the great esteem and deep affection in which President-elect Roosevelt is held by all his countrymen.

The people's regard will be the guarantee of his safety in the years of hard work that are ahead of him.

Entitled to Two More

Reapportionment Is Necessary to Give the County Proper Representation at Harrisburg.

Civic bodies of Allegheny County should keep a watchful eye on the Legislature and exert pressure to force the passage of legislation for the reapportionment of the state representative and senatorial districts. The county is entitled under the 1930 census figures to another senator and another representative. It is not receiving adequate representation under the existing set-up.

---

Reapportionment is desirable, also, that inequities of the present arrangement within the county may be rectified. The First Legislative District now has two representatives, while the Fifth has but one. Yet the population of the Fifth is so much greater than that of the First that on the same scale of representation it would have five representatives. This unfairness cries for relief.

---

Invent a superior mouse trap, said Emerson, and though your abode be in the wilderness, the world will beat a track to your door. There is a reminder of the saying in the activity of a glass company at Creighton. It has perfected a new kind of windshield safety glass which, in addition to being strong enough to resist a rifle bullet, is said to prevent eye strain from sunshine and headlight glare. Its plants are running full time. Twenty-eight lines of cars are using the new glass.

---

---

"Modern Slave Dealers" is the subject of a richly illustrated and important article in the American Weekly, to be distributed as a supplement with the Sunday Sun-Telegraph. It tells of the raids that are being made by armed horsemen from Abyssinia into Kenya, the British colony in Africa, where men, women and children are seized and carried off into servitude.

Admirably Qualified

Mayor Curley, of Boston, Would Make an Excellent Secretary of the Navy.

The Associated Press reports that Mayor James M. Curley, of Boston, is likely to be the Secretary of the Navy in Franklin D. Roosevelt's cabinet.

The country has ample reasons for hoping that this will prove true.

New England deserves representation in the Roosevelt cabinet, and in selecting Mayor Curley for the Navy portfolio the new President will be making a commendable choice.

Mayor Curley's own long record in public office gives assurance that he will make an excellent Secretary of the Navy. His vigorous patriotism, with the backing of a patriotic Democratic administration, may be confidently relied upon to save the Navy yards—not only the Navy yards of the New England coast, but those of the whole nation—from the ruinous attacks of the false-economy cohorts in Washington.

On a broader scale, every branch of the Naval service needs the strengthening which Mayor Curley's appointment as Secretary would give to naval policies. For years the internationalists and the "Little Navy" politicians have been scuttling the American fleet. Mayor Curley's militant Americanism is vitally needed to save the Navy from extinction, and to make our first line of defense what it should be.

Will warn her to refrain

Old Books

When I read a new book
I have opened a door
To regions my eyes
Have not looked on before;
To the fair realms of joy
Or the dark ways of pain;
Into forests of grief,
Or to rapture's high plain.

But, ah! when I clasp
An old book in my hands,
I can journey again
Into known and loved lands!
Gladness there grows more dear,
Beauty there shines more bright,
In a book where each page
Holds remembered delight!

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Feb. 18.—A Boston terrier looks at life: I've done all the tail-wagging and groveling I'll do today. Get up full of vim and vinegar and what happens? Run into a grouchy thus-and-thus who pushes you off and yells, "Get away!" After all I've done for him.

I suppose I can help it if he stays out late gorging raw Hamburger and things. But when he came in at 1 a. m., he found me all aquiver to jump for a ball or look for an imaginary cat. I know there isn't a cat on the place, but I act excited and—what does it get me?

He thinks he's a prime minister or something important. Well, he better watch himself. A lot of fellows thought they were great shakes. And look at them! The Missus has sense. When he scowls around like a dark cloud of rage, she ups and clears out. But I have to stick around.

I'm just a dog, but I have feelings. He'd feel pretty bad if anything happened to me. I don't believe I'm well, at that. No more than doze off, and I twitch and come to with a start. Seems like there's something crawling on me. Right now I itch behind the left ear.

Last night I was up a half-dozen times. I'll bet that I didn't sleep more than 11 hours out of 12. I'm not saying anything, but I've seen myself in the glass. I'm getting as skinny as that yipping Pom across the hall. He looks like a cockroach addicted to hair oil, the sis.

The matter with me is lack of food. All the time I'm hungry. The master gets up, sometimes its nigh onto noon, and hoes into a whole grapefruit, griddle cakes, sausage, coffee and a slice of cheese. All I get is three or four itty-bitty dog biscuits, no bigger than that. Then I'm supposed to be the life of the party. Sit up for the ladies, lie down, roll over, jump through the hoop, until I'm nearly crazy. I'm too old to be cuteing a lot of folk I don't give a hang about. I'm 10, going on 11. If I were a human, that would be equivalent to 50. Still I must be a puppy and frisk around. And giving me a rubber bone, instead of the real thing, is not cricket!

I guess Horse Face is too grumpy to take me walking. I'll have to lie here at his feet, quiet like. There's a dandy lady mastiff, up near Delmonico's, I'd like to know better. She eyes me every time I pass. I try to act like a dog about town. I suppose we'd look like Rhode Island and Texas together. Something about big ladies makes me think of front lawns, summer nights and a bright moon. Wouldn't it be funny if I turned out to be a poet. At that, I bet I could write better than some people.

* * *

I'm glad the Sealyham has to be shut in most of the time. He's so youngish and always chewing up things. And when he gets a fanning, he can't take it! You'd think they were killing him, the way he howls and runs, trembling, under the bed. And is that fraidy scared of loud noises! But he has more courage than his master, who is grown. But he's scared to go into a dark room, alone. And, when everybody is gone at night, he phones friends to keep up his courage. But you should hear him tell about his exploits when company comes. You might think he was Richard the Lion Hearted!

He had gone in to play, one-fingered, on the piano, and if people knew how he talks to himself in the bath they'd yell for an alienist. Then the way he sits so he can look at himself in the glass. If I had his profile I'd do something about it. Or rent it out to frighten kiddies. And do you know where he gets those big words he tries to spring, as casual? Well, he digs them out of the dictionary, and half the time he doesn't know what they mean. And, you know, he's always telling how many times I've crossed the ocean? Well, I've made seven round trips, but he acts like it was 20 or 30.

* * *

Now he's pirootting in the ice box. And it's only two hours since breakfast. But will he toss me a smidgin? No, he'll let me squat, looking up at him pleading-like and sniffing myself dizzy. Yet, I wouldn't trade him for six real guys with a shaggy soup bone to boot. Us dogs are like that!

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

One of the worst things that ever happened to America was the theory that any boy might be President of the United States.

Of course that theory fitted in perfectly with the democratic idea that all men are born free and equal. But unfortunately the democratic idea, though it listens lovely, is just one of those fairy tales. All men AREN'T born free and equal . . . and probably most of them wouldn't know what to do with equality and freedom if they were. And it isn't possible, or even desirable, that just any body can be President of the United States.

However, it sounded like a swell slogan, so everyone took it up. But no one will ever be able to estimate how many capable mechanics were spoiled, and how many common loafers were created, by that theory. For why stick around and milk cows, if maybe you have the latent talent to bamboozle voters?

Within the last year, the President aspiration has suffered a decline. Young America no longer considers it such a treat.

But Hollywood—now, there's a goal for the restless heart! Stay home, work hard and maybe some day get a partnership in Mr. Jones' shoeshop? What a loathesome idea, when one may be a Barrymore for the wishing!

But there's just the vicious rub of the whole problem—one CAN'T be a Barrymore, or anything else, for the wishing; and the youngster who follows the classic injunction and hitches his "wagon to a star" is far more apt to land in the gutter than in the empyrean—UNLESS HE FIRST MEASURES THE STAR.

It's a great thing to have ambition. It's a noble and necessary thing to struggle towards the heights. But be sure, first, that you're able to manage or would enjoy heights if you did achieve them.

The grim truth is that most of us aren't made for greatness—and we wouldn't like it if we did achieve it. The loneliness the cruel discipline, the galling responsibility of a really great life would give us the jitters in no time at all.

But why bring that up?

That isn't the point.

We aren't really in love with greatness, per se. We aren't actually thinking of what it requires to be a great actor, or writer, or artist, or leader, when we hitch our wagon to a star. We're just thinking of getting a free buggy-ride to glory! And we're dazzled by a pretty picture of ourselves whizzing along, all lit up with incandescence.

But what's the result? A tragic one! We become so dazed with the radiance of that picture that we're spoiled for all commonplace sights and situations.

If we hadn't become infected with that star virus, we might have found happiness and contentment and sufficient pride in just being regular people—good wives, kind husbands, honest workers, friendly neighbors. But instead, we're all a-fever with that yen to Be Different—

And straightway we scorn commonplace aims!

Then the long, vain struggle begins. For in 999,999 cases out of 1,000,000 the struggle is vain. We can't be famous. We aren't fitted to be famous. We wouldn't like fame if we achieved it. And, as a matter of fact, we aren't even trying to achieve fame. We're just out to grab spot-lights—and of course, we fail.

Then comes discouragement. Discouragement that's apt to cripple us for life. For if we can't reach the stars, we won't accept substitutes. So we drift through life, refusing to be the quite satisfactory people which we might have been, embittered because we can't be the glittering creatures which we wished to be. A general mess. And a public nuisance.

DON'T HITCH YOUR WAGON TO THE STAR—UNTIL YOU'VE MEASURED YOURSELF, THE STAR!

Hoover: Baruch: Professors, Politicians

By Claude G. Bowers

Author of "The Struggle for Democracy in America," "Founders of the Republic," "Jefferson and Democracy," "The Tragic Era" and other important works, now writing for the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

President Hoover made his last public utterance as head of the nation on Monday night. The purport of his message was that the budget must be balanced and the gold standard maintained; and that whatever we may do to assist other nations that have left it to return, would be good.

At no time has he expressed himself so bluntly regarding the propaganda, foreign in its origin or inspiration, for the transfer of the debts from Europe to this country without a corresponding concession from the debtor nations. Thus he says:

"I trust the American people will not be misled or influenced by the ceaseless stream of foreign propaganda that cancellation of war debts would give this international relief and remedy. That is not true. These debts are but a segment of the problem. Their world-wide importance is being exaggerated."

All of which has been the contention of these columns for two years. And then he makes another point, familiar to the readers of these columns, when he says:

"The American people can well contend that most of the debtor countries have the capacity to raise these annual amounts from their taxpayers, as witness the fact that in most cases the payments to us amount to less than one-third of the military expenditures of each country."

Competitive Building Is Road to Ruin

There is no disposition in these countries to reduce on armament, which is the reason the conference on armaments has failed. It remains to be seen what the debtor nations, asking a reconsideration, are prepared to offer us, and whether all the nations will muster enough sound statesmanship to realize that at the coming economic conference something must be done to restore international trade through mutual concessions.

One thing is certain: with other nations, our competitors for trade, increasing the strength of their navies, we cannot afford to weaken ours. Competitive building is the road to ruin and ultimate war, but if there must be competition we cannot sacrifice reality to a theory.

One Thing Is Certain

On the day President Hoover spoke, Bernard Baruch appeared before a Senate committee to insist that the maintenance of the gold standard and sound money, and the balancing of the budget is necessary to the return of a sound prosperity. Just now when we hear so much of cheapening the dollar, and of inflation, it is just as well that the nation hear something on the other side. One thing is certain: We shall gain nothing by drastic action which momentarily may mean easier money if the final effect is disastrous.

At the same time, Mr. Baruch is conscious of the necessity of doing something for the farmers, and he has a plan. Most men who oppose plans proposed are merely destructive critics: they are against a plan proposed but they have no substitute to offer.

The most promising feature of the Baruch statement is in the fact that it shows that in the business and financial world leaders no longer are indifferent to the status of agriculture.

'What Kind of Liberty, Senator?'

And on the day the President spoke and Baruch testified, Senator Smoot struck the reactionary note of the bourbon who forgets nothing and learns nothing new. The lame duck Senator, who is conscientious according to his light, speaks dismally of the passing of Lincoln's idea of "government of the people, by the people and for the people." That of course was Jefferson's idea to which Lincoln subscribed when he said that "the principles of Jefferson are the axioms and the precepts of a free society."

But the struggle today is to restore "government of the people, by the people and for the people," not to displace it. Our governmental policies for a long time have been dominated by the few against the interests of the many.

But Senator Smoot sees nothing in the plan to protect the people against the economic exploitation of the few but the loss of liberty.

What kind of liberty, Senator? The liberty to go on doing what the Insulls did? Half-baked ideas may be advanced to end that sort of thing, but the real fight today is to protect the economic liberties of the people, not to destroy them.

Expert Politician Must Co-operate

Prof. Raymond C. Moley has just had the privilege of talking like a Dutch uncle to a professorial or academic group. He could speak out in meeting because he, himself, is a professor, and a good one. He is in politics today because he was a good professor, and there would be more experts of the academy at the governmental council table but for one failing in so many of them—their subordination of reality to theory, their disposition to make a fetish of a formula, their temperamental incapacity to compromise to make an advance. That and their training with books and charts rather than with men. If the professorial expert could rid himself of this failing he would play a conspicuous part in the affairs of state.

There is a disposition in academic and intellectual circles to deride the intelligence and capacity of the statesman. The latter is usually referred to in these circles as a "politician." And in America, only in America, we have made the word "politician" synonymous with everything that is mean and low. Of course, Lincoln was a politician, and Jefferson, and Briand—else they could have accomplished nothing that they did.

Prof. Moley, emerging from the academic shades to mingle practically with politicians, was able to tell the academic group he addressed:

"The professors like the politicians and the politicians like the professors. I have learned more, not only of practice, but of theory, from Jim Farley and Louis Howe than from many of the books."

The expert is able to show what should be done; the politician is able to show the expert what can be done. And nothing can be done with a theory unless it can be reconciled with human nature, needs the politician as much as the politician needs the expert. Just now we need them both working in a spirit of co-operation on the most complicated and difficult problems the nation ever has known.

What We Need Today

If Prof. Moley has become a political figure in the public mind it is because he is practical as well as theoretical. Recently a small group of men representing a great industry and the vital interests of many thousands of men now in the slough of despond, wished to put Moley in possession of their facts and figures and theories. I was present. It was not an industry with which Moley had dealt directly in his academic work. It was easy to see that by his questions, his observations, his suggestions, the hard-headed men were amazed at his familiarity with their problem. They were as much amazed to find him sympathetic. After we had left, one of them turned to another with this comment:

"That is the first professor I ever met who is not all tangled up with book theories, and who has a practical head and an appreciation of the human equasion in economics. I've met some who know what ought to be done, but he is the first who seems to know how to get things done."

Now this man was unfair to the professors. There are a lot like Moley in that respect. What we need today is the mobilization of these with the "politicians," all working together on our common problem with the common sense spirit of give and take.
